Hey Scheissman, they really should get some guys with white coats to pick you up and take you off to the mental ward. You would make a fine example to be sent there. That or the zoo but I'm afraid the animals at the zoo have more culture, intelligence, and class than even your lowly self.

BWHAHAHAHAHA poor pizza BOY. He measures all superior jobs to his minimum wage one and thinks they are similar to his going nowhere situation. Poor pizza BOY.

> Of course, you probably signed up for assistance moron.

Wrong, stupid. And what's "assistance moron?" Showing off your dropout status, Davies, by leaving off punctuation? That is one of the things that give you away every time, fat boy.

3678. Retard Davies still hides behind Billy Smith.

Are you still licking the asshole of the corpse of your dead Grandmother, Davies? The one that used to wash your tiny clit with her mouth when she gave you baths , even up to when you were almost a grown man?

>Curtains boy

Only faggots think about curtains. Billy must really enjoy the "Queer Eye for the Straight Guy" guest drapery hanger job he gets occasionally.

You didn't have the balls to show at Dalton, Davies.

Billy is really a mentally ill retard named Lloyd Austin Davies. Davies is a non-achiever who is too stupid and lazy to better himself and has to work a minimum wage piza delivery BOY "job". He often refers to himself as a "time Lord" from the Dr. Who sci-fi series. He plays with Star Trek and Star Wars dolls, too. It's no surprise that at 32 year of age, he's still a virgin.

There is some debate about the source of the term, but the generally accepted version is that it comes from the Monty Python song, "Spam spam spam spam, spam spam spam spam, lovely spam, wonderful spam." Like the song, spam is an endless repetition of worthless text.

Internet spam is one or more unsolicited messages, sent or posted as part of a larger collection of messages,
all having substantially identical content.

Don`t try and change the subject..That`s a typical stategy of those who are wrong and are to arrogant to admit it..Instead of admitting their mistake they go off on some other attack to try and distract from the matter at hand (i.e. The Congresswoman who ran past security)...Your obvious ignorrance and lack of any real knowledge of gender identity issues not withstanding (Go back to posting about reality tv or football or some other intellectual giant issues that are more your speed)...This entire train of posts is all because of someones childish reading error and instead of either admitting they were in error publically or simply admitting to themselves privately they were wrong and just dropping it they made matters worse and worse by trying to bluff their way out..I`m right..They (And you) are wrong...And no amount of distraction will change that Another lie, you need another account to keep spamming because you keep getting exceeding posting limit messages.

Yet, broadcasting is part of the NAL under discussion here.

Part 97 makes it very clear what broadcasting is if you will read it for what it says and not try to parse it to confuse and obfuscate the meaning.

True, not all broadcasting (one way transmissions) are disallowed, some are specificially allowed. However, looking at the NAL and now the affirmation of said NAL, it's clear that somebody has a lot of good evidende that what was transmitted constituted broadcasting.

If you wish to "broadcast" outside of what is allowed in part 97, you need to operate under some other part of the FCC's regulations if you insist on going the RF route.

Perhaps a CB or Part 15 would suit you!

fully attracted to female and a wider variety of gal than guys althogugh I don't like "boyish" gals very well. I am more likely to be attracted to any random gal than any random guy but I enjoy both (esp at the same time) and I don't esp try to conceal it whcih has what has Wisemans and Robesons (and someother people) shorts tied up in knot

Serious question:

Just how much power is the maximum permitted level of 250 uV/m at 3 meters for non-licensed devices?

(FM broadcast band?) See this NAL for reference:

What you are referencing is a measure of field strength, not power.
The difference between them is one of the things I have been preaching on this group for years.

Yeah yeah..When you are ready to come out of the 1950`s or Junior High School (Whichever area your mind is stuck in) perhaps you can learn a bit about reality and science..You see here in this time and age we`ve progressed far enough to know about the human mind and Y and X chromosome pairs..But I don`t wish to confuse you...You learn about color TV and VCRs first and then we`ll see if you can handle things beyond the 1970`s like cordless phones and DVDs..Then when you are adjusted to the future we`ll teach you about more advanced things...Untill then your opinion on most matters doesn`t count :)
Ooooo A sarcasm detector..Now there`s a real useful invention!

That's assuming an isotropic antenna under ideal conditions..... and missing a critical part of the formula: the characteristic impedance of free space is 120 * pi (377) ohms, not 120 ohms. You left out pi.

Try again.

Well lets put it this way. Anyone can make claims. Proving those claims is another thing.

Better yet, a sucker is born every day. There is always someone who will believe and take a risk. Some have more dollars than sense.

You are comparing essentially apples and oranges. 250 UV/m is a power density measurement that is different from actual power supplied to the antenna. What the FCC is specifying is a field power density at a specific distance from the antenna. This is often specified in commercial services like that of FM broadcst. There is no actual power out specification like in CB or Land Mobile, but a power density at a distance. So depending on the efficiency and gain of the antenna system, will determine how much actual power is needed by the transmitter to yield 250uV/m at 3 meters.

There are formulae to calculate the power density from know variables such as transmitter power, cable losses, antenna gain, antenna hiegth, frequency of operation and distance from the antenna. Once you know the variables it is simple plug and chug to get the answers.

Yeah those things have been out for some time now.

If you where to do a side by side field strength test, with different stations and such, you would know the truth.

Are we talking 1 or .1 watts to a 1/4 wave GP or 1/2 dipole.

Tnom's calculation was right: 0.01875 microwatts from an isotropic radiator. If the antenna has gain over an isotropic then you must reduce power accordingly; i.e, cut the power in half when using a dipole with +3dBi.

The formulae and theory works whether you are using 1 milliwatt or 1 megawatt.

You can increase the power by decreasing the gain of the antenna. An antenna with say -20dBd gain could use power that is 20 dB higher.

Much less than that--do the math:

250 uV/m is a power density of 1.66 x 10^-10 w/m. (P= E^2/R and R for free space is 376.7 ohms).

A sphere with a radius of 3 meters has a surface area of 113.1 meters.
Multiplying this by the power density gives .019 microwatts, which if applied to an isotropic antenna (if such an animal existed) would give the specified level. Since a dipole has a gain of 2.1 db (1.64) compared to an isotropic reference, an input power of .011 microwatts to a dipole would result in the same field strength.

It's been a load of fun reading the wild posts about me. It's like sitting back with a cold one and watching a dog chase it's own tail for hours on end because it's too dumb to know better. From reading the posts the really dumb ones stand out from the crowd. Better they left their mouths shut rather than opening it thus relieving all doubt.

Anyway I've had better things to do the last few weeks, finally got my TI 320C6713 DSP EVM boad with the development software so I've been busy with another engineer buddy working on some DSP projects. Nothing like going back to review all the discrete time system theory, FFT's and z-transform stuff I learned years ago. It's a lot more interesting than the silly name calling and baiting to start a flame war going on in this news group lately and I don't want to waste my time with such crap either Jim.

it might make assembly of the system easier chosing to waste power ut have a levelle easier to measure or control or matching some existing system and it output by design the atenna to bring it into line

Thanks for the help and suggestions Peter, I believe I might have spoken to Ernest and I am getting to know a lot of people, Maniac and Wayne's World are two people who seem to be pretty predominant on the CB along with a few others, along with Joe 90 who is the one who helped me SWR in my aerial.

I have had a go at using a scanner, I have borrowed a GRE PSR 220 from a friend, even though there are no instructions for it and therefore I do not have a clue how to use it properly, I am able to do a basic scan of the various frequencies, I managed to pick up HAM and Aircraft the other day as well as various Data streams.

Thanks to everyone for their kind words, until laters.

Hey Lardass, why are you folliowing up to yourself, you pathetic loser?

LLOYD'S A VIRGIN

(Madonna/Billy Steinberg and Tom Kelly/Les Paul)

LLoyd made it through 12th grade
Somehow he made it through Never had a forum for his views
Until he found radio newsgroups

Lloyd is the the freak of the week
Everybody avoids that fatassed geek
But everyday's a brand new day Yeah, it makes him feel Shiny and new

Lloyd's a virgin
Hasn't had pussy for the very first time
Lloyd's a virgin
Never tires of jacking off all the time

"I'm gonna post about you, boy
My Bible's on my side"
Lloyd's been bashed around Because his stupidity is hard to hide

He's bald, obese and round
A weeble-wobble that won't fall down
Oh, when he went to the retreat
Yeah, he stepped on his own feet
What a fucking fool

Lloyd's a virgin <GAY!>
Hasn't had pussy for the very first time
Lloyd's a virgin
Never tires of jacking off all the time

Oooh, oooh, oooh

He's bald, obese and round
He'll just follow you around Because you make him feel

Yeah, you make him feel
He's got something to do

Lloyd's a virgin
Hasn't had pussy for the very first time
Lloyd's a virgin
Never tires of jacking off all the time

Lloyd's a virgin, ooh, ooh
He'd rather slurp nutsack goo
Lloyd's a virgin
What's a loser like him to do

Oh, oh, oh, oh, oh, oh, oh, oh, oh
Ooh, Lllllloyd
Can't you hire a whore
For the very first time?

he did, neither.
It's all in the Dunklin Daily Democrat, isn't it, Holsten?

That is probably true. Other than CB and FRS, etc., unlicensed devices (typically under Part 15 of the FCC regulations) are only intended for short-range use, to minimize interference with licensed operation.

LOL.

Well, it's not that bad. But just look around the rec.radio.amateur.
groups and you can see some of the people you could run into on the ham bands.

Scary, isn't it.

The FCC URL website has already proven the 17366 N. River Rd. is your correct address.
You hid out with that P.O. Box, didn't you? You are always going on about hiding, but you are hiding, behind a P.O. Box 212 to be exact:

KB9RQZ
MARK C MORGAN
Pob 212, PO BOX PoB212
Chassell MI 49916
USA

Just like one of your neighbors is:

Chadwick Kuivanen
17310 N River Rd
Chassell, MI 49916-9431
Phone: 906-523-4349

I wouldn't say that the sound card software approach is "easier" at least from a design standpoint. From a user's point of view you're right about the ease of use, you can't beat it. The main difference between a DSP board as opposed to sound card software is performance. And that is a two part issue.
One is raw computational performance and the second is power consumption.
The TI 6713 on my EVM gets barely warm while cranking out 1200 to 1300
MFLOPS. Then take a look at the monster sized CPU in your PC and it's heat sink. No contest. A last point DSP chips don't waste transistors on stuff that isn't needed like virtual memory, privilege levels etc. that only matters to CPUs running general applications and need to be protected from other users on the system.

One of the things that the TI EVM development software does for you is the complex scheduling of the various routines that have time critical deadlines to meet. If you do the sound card routine, writing it yourself that is, you have to not only do the application code but you have to write your own scheduler routine and maybe with multi-level interrupts you assign to the different threads running.

Writing code for DSP chips has gotten easier now that most vendors have "C" compilers you can use. And at least with TI they have a DSP BIOS that handles the low level hardware crap so you don't have to using assembly code. Add on hardware often comes with plug-in modules containing the required low level code so you don't have to write it yourself. You just call the low level routines from "C" using the provided function prototypes in the vendor's "xxx.h" files and the linker finds the code in the vendor supplied library files.

One of the interesting things I've found out is some hard-core audiophiles are using some of the DSP EVM boards to do some custom filter and complex frequency-gain adjustments etc. I've seen some lively discussions among some of them over which EVM system is best to use or going a roll-your-own approach is better. Some of them were looking for doing direct digital to audio applications, some audio equipment has direct digital outputs, with noise reduction etc. because they don't like the limitations of the commercial gear out there.

Thanks for the post. It's refreshing to have an intelligent exchange of messages compared to the infantile crap some others are trying to get me to waste time on.

It does matter in my case, since it won't be used for CB. I suspect it's the MC145106, but I will confirm this another way since no one here seems to be of help. BTW, what law forbids modifying a CB or ham radio to be used as a receiver only for other radio frequencies? After all, a Superstar (or any other Ham rig for that matter) CAN be purchased by anyone and used as a receiver, whether or not it is modified for other frequencies. So please don't assume that this radio is going to be used for CB as that's not the intended purpose.

Still hiding again, Lardass? You are the one who is a mentally ill retard. Tell us how you are a "time lord" again, fatassed pizza BOY.

3977. Marky wants to give Lardass Lloyd his AIDS so Lardass can finally lose weight!

As usual, Lardass, you fucked it up. You can't photoshop worth a shit.
But then you can't do anything worth a shit, you are worthless.

How about this picture, it's the one you love so well, now gobble up, fatty:
http://h1.ripway.com/lloyddaviessux/lloyd_makes_woger_sounds.jpg

It shows you look like a 75 year old man since you lost your hair before you were 21!

My wife's name ain't Shirley and my name ain't Holsten, Wiseman, I'm in Medina Ohio you stupid cunt.

I'd send one of those Hatfield relatives over to your slum, but we all seen what a coward were recently when Dave Heil and his wife showed up at your West Virginia slum. You were too afraid to come outside. rofl!

Why are you such a chickenshit, and why don't you post as yourself, Wiseman?

You should really try to stay out of the threads where you haven't got a clue about the subject everyone is talking about. Basically for you, that would mean any thread related to radio. Then you won't get laughed at as much. Of course, they're all still going to laugh at your spelling and grammer, but there is nothing you can do about that.

Happy to Help.

My EVM came with five thick books. I went through part of the first one and realized to write my own software for it, it was going to take some time to learn things. So I mainly used software written by others. Why re-invent the wheel. I still don't have a lot of time to play, but maybe someday I'll plug it in again and learn a little.

I didn't see any admission of anything, Rog. What is your fixation on the pates of others? You've gone on for ages about my hair. You've claimed that I have a comb-over, yet any photo of me reveals your tale to be fantasy. Now you're fixed on Mark Morgan's hair? Get a life.

My car is not quite three years old. It is yellow. What is your fixation on it and its color? Why would anyone go to a web site to see a Dodge Neon?

Been on the air lately, Roger? Worked any DX? Checked into any nets?
Done any RTTY operation?

No, the real Sheffield :~)
I cannot find Sheffield in my Ohio map. I found a Sherwood and a Marion... but no Robin. I expect that every British town has an American town or city named after it.

The OP is in the UK. CB was not legal here until 1981, so tube type CBs are not exactly common. But, on car boot sales, it is possible to pick up CBs for a few quid.
I picked up a pair of hand-held CBs for a fiver.

Poor Davey, he's about to pop his clogged heart with all that high blood pressure. Now, maybe you can review your tapes of your whore wife cuntlapping your dog to calm you down.

I'm glad to see you are amused.

You have more in common with Hoover than you do Liddy.

Maybe you should read the good book.

The APA used to consider it a mental illness, pressure from the liberal left have made it politically incorect to associate gender related problems with mental illness.

You don't wish to learn. The fact is you were born a man and prefer to be a women. If you don't see what's wrong with that, then that's your problem. If you feel so strongly about your gender identity, then why did you pull your pic off your web site??????? Shame, that's why. And why do you feel this shame?? Because deep inside you know it's wrong.

Hey, it's never to late. You stop learning when you're dead in my view. It sure beats exchanging insults on this news group.

Yup, reusing code written by others is a good idea, why reinvent the wheel unless you're doing it for self pedagogical reasons. In fact that's one aim for good software engineering practice; code reuse. Was that EVM board a stand alone system or was it part of some kit it was to be used in? I assume you're referring to the Motorola 56000 DSP chip you mentioned in another post.

Leland, stop trying to hide the garbage you've posted to this group under your various nyms, and been busted numerous times for it. You and your buddy N8WWM are total fucktards, and should be viewed as such. Yes, from time to time, you post here in the present persona and make some sense, but for the most part your mental instability and lack of useful qualities leaves you blabbering to yourself. You are one of two people in this NG that are the kings of insults, and for you to come in here espousing your virtues is total lie and you know it.

Back in the 70's my brother and I were into CB, I had an SBE Console II (2) at that time it was a 23 channel radio. Life went on and I sold out and never got back into it, this was before the 40 channel radios came out. Talking to my brother the other day we got into a debate about how SBE came out with a Console II (2) with 40 channels.

Can anyone confirm that SBE did indeed have a console II with 40 channels. Did it have PLL or crystals (if PLL what chip?)
Thanks
Buzz

Except Lardass Lloyd is like you, Marky, his mental age is about 6 years old. Holsten did molest his newborn son, and Holsten's son just recently got arrested for child molesting.

I'm sorry, that was mean of me to say. You can do something about your

Ask this question in: rec.radio.amateur.antenna

N connectors maintain impedance, So maybe its just the physical length of the adaptor. I'm not sure how it might effect the velocity factor.

Funny talking about DSP in this group. I normally come here to stir a little when someone says their CB broke. LOL. I know that's mean.

Mine has the motorola DSP56002EVM. TAPR made a kit to use it in. You can connect a couple radio's to it. It has status lights on the front you can program to indicate various states like what you would see on a regular multi-mode TNC. On the back is a programming port and a communications port. My soldering iron was probably only hot for about an hour and a half putting it together.
It's really quite neat setup, after you load the modem software you want you can use it without having to wire every up again, or switch cables.
It's nice to have two computers hooked to it. One to use as a terminal for what ever you're doing. PSK, Packet, etc, and the other computer to load the modem software and program it. If you only have one computer you have to switch back and forth. One thing I didn't do but wanted to was burn an Eprom with the different modems on it to switch between modes faster. What I had to do each time I used it was load what ever software I wanted to use at the time. There was another way you could load two different modems in it at the same time but I never did that.

If you can program yours in a higher language and compile it down to the EVM, that's a lot better than using an assembler like I got with mine, though some members of TAPR wrote some apps to make things easier.

Like I said, I'm not doing much with it right now. Time is the problem.
It's easiest to use the soundcard.

If you develope a new mode, you might have to port it to the PC so everyone else can use it. There are a number of people in Amsat that are working with DSP for the satellites. Look around for Phil Karn, he's a good one to bounce ideas off of, and knows who else is experimenting. Also browse TAPR, I don't know what they're doing DSP wise these days. I was never a member. I only really got into the EVM & DSP when you couldn't buy an AEA DSP.

That sounds like a nice kit they put together. They supply any block diagrams or other documentation explaining how the code worked?

If you look around you may find a compiler released under the public GNU license agreement that would work for your DSP chip. If you get the bug again it would be worth the time to look.

I've looked at some of the FFT routines used on some of the software defined radios being sold. The one I looked at wasn't documented very well. I wish that people who write code for public release did a better job at documenting what they did with more in-line comments and extensive cometary in the header files.

What I'm working on, with another engineer buddy from work, is sort of a midnight engineering project that's work related but not necessary for work if you get my meaning. Many companies like to swipe work related stuff people do and then paten it under the company's name with no compensation to the employee and that's even if they did all the work on their own time and at their own expense. There was a magazine published at one time I've read called "Midnight Engineering" that covered exactly these sorts of issues with engineers developing ideas on their own at home. I don't know if the magazine is still published or not.

I've seen Phil's name mentioned often.

They are in to the new thing; software defined radios. They sell a kit with a home grown DSP board to use with it. Even the professional community is in to it big time as well.

> I was never a member. I only really got into the EVM > & DSP when you couldn't buy an AEA DSP.

I thought that AEA still made DSP modems for packet. At least that's what I thought I saw at last years Hamvention. They usually set up in a hallway between a couple of the larger rooms. The rage now is using commercial WiFi 802.11b gear for extended range. One company I checked out on the Internet is selling a 2 watt bi-directional 2.4 GHz amp. To get one you must supply documentation to them proving you're a licensed Ham before they'll ship one out to you. No proof no amp. As long as the WiFi stuff is operated on the correct channels the frequencies used fall in to the 2.4 GHz allocation Hams can use so we can legally run much higher power with gain antennas that ordinary WiFi users can't. And here's the kicker operating that way, under Part 97, any interference ordinary users suffer they can't do much about it since the commercial WiFi stuff is licensed under Part 15.

I don't know that they made a 40 channel version, but most I saw had one of several compatible brands of VFO attached. One thing about it though, those were very well made radios with great audio.

I just got a GE 40 Channel Handheld CB model 3-5980 and i think there is a problem with the display. The only time the display seams to be on is when i channel up/down or when something is transmitting. Is this normal or should it be on all the time?

Hello,

I'm an owner of a SBE Console V. This was SBE's answer to the addition of channels 24-40. Unfortunately, this rig was fairly expensive $450-$600 range and wasn't as friendly to modification as it's peer group of radios.
This is a sharp looking rig even for todays standards and a decent performer.

You don't need a diploma to know that while the former may be a fact,
the latter is just an opinion.

I never said otherwise the NG is not worth the time for polish , sure it is an opion but look at the place most of the content for year has 2 or 3 people calling everyone retarded or alfficted with STD's or child moestors or just plain rapist

if the NG want me to spend more time polishing it need to merit that treament in the judgent of those it is asking to do the work

you for example are not even willing to sign you name to your stuff

Not to mention it's been close to a month, and this is the first time you have denied the existence of said photo. You have tried to implicate Scottie

If you google your e-mail addy you are all over the

That is normal with that model. I used to have a similar GE handheld, they're utter pieces of crap. You might get $5 off someone desperate for a handheld radio at the truck stop for your GE.

That is not now nor has it ever been my website or any of my many TG related websites..I told you before you have a problem with reading comprehension....You guys watch the X-Files to much if you are seeing conspiracies everywhere.....That "page" was created only for the purpose of that one post to share one photo til the thread for that one post had expired as I only would use a page that linked to the same screen name that I post under...I would never post under one screen name and put in a link to another screen name as that makes it look like you are up to something.......Denided the existence of said photo???...Hahaha..Show me where I said that?..I have hundereds of photos online..Many films also..I was in a TG documentary which was shown at the DC Film Festival...Outed?...LOL..You guys are to funny...Like I said you watched to much X-files..I live very openly and all my friends,family and co-workers are supportive of who I am...I have many many TG related screen names and websites.....That "page" was in no way a website so I stand by my correct again claim that there has never been a TG related website associated with this screen name....Drop this??...is whole thread is about your lies,misrepresentations and lack or reading comprehension and I stand by all of it.....Anyone can do a Google search and bring up any posts I`ve made on all sorts of subjects so don`t try and act like you are mister private eye and you are discovering things on your own or things that are deep dark secrets...Like I said I am very open and have nothing to hide from anyone so you are just looking more and more petty by trying to divert attention from the fact this whole thread line started because you failed in reading comprehension and made a mistake with the rimmer junk and instead of being a man and admitting you were wrong even after it was so obviuosly proven you decided to try and change subjects by going on some misguided attack mode which has been shot down at every turn because you lack the mental capacity to carry my suitcase.

Yes my wife is here in the US and is fine thank you...LOL..Once again it is laughable that you think you are looking like some kind of great online detective by doing a simple google search of message board posts....I`ll answer any question openly and honestly which is something that someone like you can not deal with...I`ll be happy to straighten out any questions your lack of comprehension is causing you regarding any of my posts.

By the way the person I "implicated" has contacted me under my AOL TG screen name which lists I am transgendered and live in Baltimore and was looking to meet.

Shit look at all the homo posts, they have stopped talking radio in this group at around 1998. Everything after that has been bullshit anti keydown stuff.

At CB frequencies the electrical length of adaptors and connectors are generally insignificant. You would have more effect due to insertion loss of up to 0.5dB for most connectors than problems with electrical length issues.

For info sake:

EL = (299.8/Freq.(MHz))* VF

where EL is the electrical length and VF is the velicity factor of the transmission line. So for a quarter wave length you would take the length calcualted above and divide by 4. Similarly a half wave length would be divided by 2.

Hello Jzhao:

A lot of guys want to use the N type connector believing they have lower loss. Probably not a hole lot of difference in the loss between a N type and a PL-259 connector. The PL-259 connector will take way more power than the N type connector, experience has shown us that.

I would think the length of the connector and a ball park VF of 80 percent would get you real close.

What ya need that info for?

Well, mail is easily ignored, and I keep a 12 gauge close by, so I am not particularly concerned. One who is too gutless to identify himself is certainly too gutless to show up at my door, and if he did, it would be unfortunate for him, if he chose to act in a threatening manner.

First drafts? How many drafts does it take to polish up sentence or a phrase? LOL

If you're going to say something, why not say it in a manner where what you have to say will be understood by those that read it?

I'll have to look. I think it was covered in one of the books, by Motorola but TAPR didn't provide one.

The AEA unit was the 2232 I think or something like that. I haven't done wifi but I hear alot of talk about war driving. I have a three foot dish on the tower that I used on 2.4 ghz when ao-40 was going. I downconvert sigs to two meters. Never tried to see what wifi looked like. If they had a weatherproof unit minus the antenna, I could plug that on the helix and point the dish around the neighborhood. It has tight beamwidth & good gain. LOL, hey, Free broadband. ;-) There's also wireless internet in the area that operates at 2.4 gig too, it gets down converted an plugs into a regular cable modem. The company supplies a grid dish and there is some form of transmitter on it. I always wondered who made the transmitter and if you could buy one surplus for experimentation. And then experiment with a little with a cable modem.

4153. where to find alignment tools for HR-2510?

Using the jewler's ceramic screwdriver just isn't doing the job anymore as it keeps breaking slugs.... where can I find the proper alignment tools for adjusting the tiny slugs of the HR-2510?

Thanks,

I'd like to try a much simpler, rough receiver alignment using a mosquito "buzz it" type generator as mentioned in the CB repair book by CBC International. The question is, where do I find one of these generators? A net search isn't turning up much.

Thank,
Eric

Why not supplement CB with Amateur Radio? I have a older Cobra 148 GTL in my truck along with Yesau 2800. The technician test is really easy to pass and most VMs charge $14. I run a Wilson 1000 on top of the cab and a MFJ glass mount 2M. The glass mount works fine with 2M, never have a problem hitting local repeaters.

Around the time of the switch to 40 channels purchasers of SBE Consol II's could ship their radio back to the factory for a 40 channel upgrade free of charge. I never saw a new Consol II 40 channel out of the factory for retail sale. I had a twenty-three channel version but didn't do the upgrade. Was a nice radio for it's day, receiver had some issues with adjacent channel rejection otherwise it was a great base radio. I was into Browning at the time an just purchased a Mark IV.

If I'm not mistaken the Console V was one of the last radios with the modified 02A chip for 40 channel coverage. It was based on a SBE mobile placed into a rather lavish wood cabinet with additional controls. Many of the SBE radios were based on Raytheon chassis.

The gain in slightly lower loss for N connectors is due to the constant impedance the connector provides. PL-259 are not guaranteed constant 50 Ohm impedance.

Still one is argueing over about 0.25 dB. At CB and most Ham frequencies below VHF, this loss is really minimal. As for power handling the N connector install properly and kept clean internally should have power handling capabilities to 1 KW.

The length of the connector is so little a wavelength at CB frequencies that it is really not worth worrying about.

>>>That's all you had to say. Was it so hard to spit that out? Maybe I was too complex in my posting, I should have dumbed it down for you.<<<

Who said it was hard to say??..You sure do make a lot of big assumptions about things...You were accusing me of quickly deleting my "website" and implying it was because I was scared of being found out and was ashamed ,etc..I of course had no idea what you were talking about as all my websites and home pages are up and running fine and full of photos and biographical info...You didn`t need to "dumb anything down", you simply needed to make it clearer what you could have possibly been talking about and maybe just asking...The page you mentioned was simply something I made to accompany a post I made on the alt.fashion group way back in October and was only up long enough for that thread since I only have access to USENET thru Google and only have access to Google thru this name and I wanted my post screen name to match the page screen name..Nothing sinister there

This whole wayward thread started because someone misread a message I made on a TG board and assumed that I was the one asking about a certain sex act when in fact I was replying to the person who was asking about it and I was against it..But because they misunderstood this one point they decided to make a fake post on here and attach my name to it and imply I performed the disgusting sex act mentioned above...That started a whole long series of me rightly defending myself and me being attacked farther

As I said I have nothing to hide from anyone..This is a CB radio board so TG issues aren`t part of the general conversation so I`ve never mentioned it..I`m sure most folks on here have many aspects of their lives none of us know of because it doesn`t directly relate to the discussion..That doesn`t mean they are trying to hide something...I am therefore no longer following this thread and will return to this group only if I should have some CB info I need...If anyone has any serious questions about me or transgendered people in general or wishes for a newer photo of me to satisfy their curiosity feel free to e-mail me..I will keep anything totally confidential

Oh and just to stay on topic..It don`t mean a thing if it ain`t got that DaveMade swing!

I wouldn't mind looking at it if you find it. I do have an older book from TI titled "Theory and Implementation of a splitband Modem Using the

How often did you get on? I was on several times myself but work really put a damper in to the activities. I live in an apartment so any time I wanted to get on I had to take the setup out side. The neighbors thought it looked like something from an episode of the "X-Files" when they saw it! I have a 40" grill dish for the 2.4 GHz down link in to an UEK300 down converter, to 2m, from SSB. The up link was on 70 cm, 50 watts in to an 11 element beam from M-Squared. If I needed more power I've got two 10 w in 100 w out 70 cm brick amps I could have used. The rig I use is an FT-847. The few times I got on it really was fun. The half second delay in the audio does take some getting use too. I'm waiting for the next one to go up. I want to do some more sat work.

The county here, Oakland Michigan, is setting up a free WiFi county wide access too. It won't be real fast, something like 128kbps, but it's better than paying for the same slow crap using a network card through the cell phone telco's.

If you have a link for that I would like to read about that kind of setup.

4183. President Jackson mic wiring?

Does anyone have any info on the mic wiring for the 6 pin president jackson?

I have looked all over but the only thing I can see is for a 4 pin.
This is a six pin jackson, that warbles on SSB.

Has anyone had this problem?

Maybe a regulator replacement?

Any info would be great.

You bet, there was a test tonight, there was a mobile running a so called Linear, three pill WOW, CBer 102" whip , and a Ham running 15 watts to a quarter wave 146 mhZ antenna both mobiles 12 air miles away. The Cber thought it was great that we could here him with his Linear and echo mic but his copy was Noisy, with allot of static, as the Ham was mostly full quieting, and damn good clear copy without all the swing audio.

I have a Mark IV a Collins a Yeasu, Icom, and a few other jap components.
Linears are best with a good antenna! <ewe new> well,

having a ham rig (and the accompanying license) does much to open possibilities. :)
also, instead of listening to all that noisy Am+heterodyning, etc, you can have nice quiet FM (for 6 - .25 meters) and nicer sounding ssb for the other lower bands

You can find the mic wiring for a six pin Jackson here:

<http://www.electronics.radiouk.com/tronix/radio/mics.php>

Only took me a few seconds to find this on Google.

Your 'warbling' could be caused by any number of things, but most likely that the radio has been 'fiddled' with. What sort of power supply are you using with it? Does it still warble when transmitting into a dummy load instead of your aerial system?

Regards,

Matt.

You bet, there was a test tonight, there was a mobile running a so called Linear, three pill WOW, CBer 102" whip , and a Ham running 15 watts to a quarter wave 146 mhZ antenna both mobiles 12 air miles away. The Cber thought it was great that we could here him with his Linear and echo mic but his copy was Noisy, with allot of static, as the Ham was mostly full quieting, and damn good clear copy without all the swing audio.

What they go for on ebay has no relation on their performance you can find allot of model T parts on the net and bring good prices as again they were good in their days. Collins had allot of good engineers and made allot of patients, and were ahead of their time then but as in allot of other industries they faded out. they were good in their day, but Like all good American products the Japs made it better.

4222. YOUR LEADER K1MAN/AARA/IARN WILL NOT PAY $21,000 FCC FINE - DEMANDS JURY TRIAL

K1MAN/AARA/IARN WILL NOT PAY $21,000 FCC FINE - DEMANDS JURY TRIAL

1. The FCC has declined to provide a requested hearing, and the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution requires a hearing and due process of law before they can collect a dime much less the "ORDERED" "fine" of $21,000. Even a traffic ticket gets a hearing, right?

2. Therefore, the next step for the FCC, by statute, is to now sue K1MAN for the claimed $21,000 in Federal District Court in Bangor, Maine where K1MAN would demand a trial by jury (trial de novo), subpoena witnesses (Hollingsworth, Boston Office Engineers, hams, etc.), file motions, etc. The FCC can't even bring such a suit, of course, because the minimum claim in Federal District Court is $50,000.

3. By statute, unresolved forfeiture matters such as above cannot be used in any other FCC proceeding such as K1MAN's pending renewal application.

4. By statute, K1MAN can and will continue to operate until the renewal application is finally decided including all appeals to the D.C. Court of Appeals and the U.S. Supreme Court.

Bottom line is that the FCC is blowing phony legal smoke leading to Hollingsworth's 2006 Dayton "Special Achievement Award" which is not too bad for a guy who was sick on the day they taught law at law school. Wake Forest Law School should refund all of his hard earned money! Good luck in the contest!

Yes, but not just there. That happens in almost every group. Normally the target of the criticism will try to improve their typing and spelling, but not you. You continue to post and type like a friggen retard.

Ah, Didn't you ask this same question on the 3rd?

Here you go again:

Don't bother changing. The ARRL (Anti-Radio-Relay-League) has gone to great lengths to try and make ham radio just like CB radio. You won't gain anything except the expense of another radio. If the ARRL gets its way, in a year or two you should be able to get a ham license as the free surprise in a box of Cracker Jacks.

You and me both! I got bummed out when AO-40 quit. That bird had the potential to be a communication master piece if everything worked. I waited until it went up before getting the gear to work it. Even as it was after the accident it was impressive. I've been on UO-14, before it died, a few times running mobile but those birds aren't really made for rag-chewing. Plus there always seemed to be some overpowered station hogging the pass nearly every time. You get a window of what 8 to 10 minutes per pass. With AO-40 you had at least a couple of hours to talk on SSB without having to chase the bird all over the sky constantly to stay on target with the antennas like you do with some of the LEO sat's. Readjusting the antennas by hand anywhere from 15 to 20 minutes was normally good enough for AO-40. Another high orbit sat is what I like to see and the one they're building now is what I'm waiting for too.

Nobody is forcing you to read his posts. When you see a thread entitled, "homo-gay-troll-fodder", skip over it. When you see what appears to be a normal thread but there are only two or three active posters using unknown or anonymous names, skip them over. And if, due to some genetic abnormality, you are COMPELLED to read posts you don't want to read then I would suggest you instead read "The Golden Bough" by Frazer (no, not the one from TV). In that book you will find many primitive remedies that were used when a man didn't have what it takes to be a man, one of those being that he should fuck his mother to retrieve the part of his manhood that was left behind in the womb. Maybe that will work for you. Maybe you should probe your mommy's pussy for the common sense and self control she never gave you.....

As for me, I have no killfile yet I am able to exercise some self control. To demonstrate this technique I will now put you in my "mental killfile" (that explanation should make Dr. Death happy).

I have a trc457 in new condition...thats a 458 with a digital clock basically...the rig has NEVER been opened...I bought it for 399.00 in 1978.

EXACTLY THE SAME electronics...

Also have secret cb instructions on modding it from 1978!

Has Radio shack desk mike too..

I will take 170.00

Hi Steve

I have a MINT Radio Shack TRC 457 base ssb unit. It was made in 78!

Has the Uniden 858 PLL chip. I also have the SECRET CB modification info for this radio, The radio itself has NEVER been opened up. It works and looks like new. Comes with a RS amplified base station mike ta boot!

I would take $50.00 cash and the 04AT for it, if the HT is in good shape. Obviously we would each pay our own shipping.

so what, AO-40 was better than HF in many ways.

my concern over the german bird in that they will over do the complexity and repate what I suspect (with no real proof) was the cause of loseing AO-40

I prefer Yellow Fin Tuna between 20 & 40Lbs, that's a fun fight.
Close second would be 40 to 60lb Dorado or Wahoo.

Funny how Frankie-boi mentally killfiled me, yet followed me in this thread.
Him and Markie-tard have a lot in common, they desperately seek my negative attention. Even when I told them they are killfiled they follow me like I'm

Hi, James,

thanks for your formula, but, one question is what is 299.8 for?
by the way, something should be defined, i need the answer of this question based on the RF 50 Ohm and when it is working on high frequency (GHz).

the insertion loss of the adaptor can be calculated approximative.
with the intention that sometime we need to know the electrical length on test measurement technology.

You can't give up CB completely. You should still have your CB to listen on channel 19, swear, etc. You are going to have fun on ham (I'm not one, nor have I used my CB in a while either), but you get to play with satellites (including bouncing signals off the moon), repeaters, phone patch, TV, microwaves, computer data and more. This is done on a tech class license. If you go higher you get morse code, and shortwaves. Ooh I forgot to mention you get to use FM, VHF/UHF/SHF/EHF, and 1000 watts.

not exactly..... tubes still have one advantage that most modern IC's don't have: EMP resistance.

and yeah, I have a tube rig here and it does sound a little nicer than the equivalent transistor radio. the major drawbacks with tubes: heat (LOTS OF

Once, but unfortunately it was caught on big game fish set up.
I'm sure had we used a light to medium set up it would have been a fun catch.

But they do have the legal right to collect this money or a lot of folks who have gone before would have tried this approach. It won't work. Others have paid fines to the FCC for less blatant violations of the rules. Best get a good lawyer and start collecting the money from the change jar, bank accounts, car ash tray etc. Somebody is going to have to come up with $21k. As noted by others, this 50K limit does not apply to this case, but have fun using this defence in court. I can hear it now, "Objection over-ruled! Sit down Mr Baxter!"

A jury trial would be fun to watch, but there would be no doubt about the outcome if Baxter chooses to continue to represent himself. I'm sure a jury of his peers would understand the part 97 rules and how they where broken.

> 3. By statute, unresolved forfeiture matters such as above cannot be

>From my perspective this does not apply in this case any more. The FO pretty much resolves this issue so the FCC can use this enforcement issue to deny the pending renewal application, paid or not. However, that need not be the reason used to deny the renewal. I'm sure they have other things they can use to justify a denial if they wanted to. All they need to do is dust off some different violations for which they have collected evidence and voila, application denied. The don't even need a rules violation, just a determination that he would be unfit. Now that's a tough argument.. :)

> 4. By statute, K1MAN can and will continue to operate until the > renewal application is finally decided including all appeals to the > D.C. Court of Appeals and the U.S. Supreme Court.

I would not try to operate after the application is denied. Once K1MAN gets the "you no longer have authority to operate" letter from the FCC, he'd best stop. Of course the FCC is well within their rights to keep the application in pending status as long as they choose. The denial may come out today, or may take years. I think it will be sooner rather than later, but I give it a few months yet before they deny the renewal. I'm sure they plan to be totally sure he's not going to pay the fine before they deny the application so any time after the end of the month.

Unless Baxter wants to just loose $21k to help fund the FCC, I would suggest that he contact them through a competent lawyer and seek some sort of settlement terms. Perhaps a life time ban from Part 97 operations, liquidation of all his part 97 capable equipment, promise to not seek a future license while the FCC forgoes the collection of the fines. But hey, it may be to late for even that. I'd bet the FCC has him dead to rights on this fine, he will loose his renewal bid, pay the fine and then who knows what he will do? I'm guessing here, but I'll bet the FCC would agree to him going willingly into part 15 operations and forget the fine under the right conditions.

Based upon is rhetoric it seems that he will be dragged kicking and screaming from his shack and off to jail, while his equipment is confiscated. One can only hope that this is rhetoric and that at some point he will "come to his senses" and give up.

And how would you justify that position?

Care to have a thinking debate or are you going to continue to post flames?

Seems to me that a Forfeiture Order is sort of final from the FCC's perspective. Pay up or face the DOJ in court when they attempt to collect the fine.

An you don't think that the FCC will simply renew his license do you?

I would never own a kenmore but I indeed own SSB tranceivers for whf and uhf hambands (except currently 222MHZ tech problem) and into the microwave bands as well as home brewFM gear into the millimeter range

the way back (or forward) is step by step of balsting those that introduce and promote the gay bashing for BLGT people are goingto step and anouce themselves i radio furm CB or ham, but today yes BLGT folks feel they have the right to defend themselves against such cefforts toattack them

Mark,
I really could care less about what or who you are, but this constant changing of screen nics is against your ISP TOS. I have kill filed some 15 plus screen nics, to no avail. There was a person that did that all the time before, when enough people started sending complaints complete with copies of the posts showing that he was doing nothing more than causing problems and purposely, they sent him warnings and he stopped changing screen nics.
Again, I could care less about you, but I get tired of you changing screen names just to by pass filters so you can get the attention you crave.

Please stop changing your screen nics so others can enjoy what little these groups have to offer.

not doing that sir I post using google which limits howmuch I can access Usent through each nick i am just respounding to the ever increasing attacks mounted by Wismen and Robeson

inded aslong as that is what I am doing my ISP has no obections since they admit they are powerless stop to help against those two and that I hae the right to defend my self

4418. OT: Gasoline storage test

Newsgroup: rec.radio.cb
Date: 2006-04-19 03:46:05 UTC
From: Frank Gilliland <w&#65533;renut@NOSPAM&#65533;cehouse.net>
Message-ID: <57ab42hgts16vdrf39uhhs60g8ok0c5t3q@4ax.com>
Source record: 212804

This post is not radio related but may be of interest to many CBers.

I just finished a test I did regarding gasoline storage using different containers, with and without Stabil.

Two of each of the following containers were used:

5 gallon gerry can, new
5 gallon gerry can, slightly rusted inside
1-1/2 gallon plastic (#2 PE) (sealed)
1-1/2 gallon plastic (#2 PE) (vented)
2 liter pop bottles (#1 PETE) (tried these just for kicks)

Gasoline was Chevron regular (87 octane), bought in Jan, 04 (winter blend, oxygenated with 10% ethanol). One of each pair of containers was treated with Stabil as per instructions, and the other was left untreated. All containers were opened last week. Each was tested on a 4 HP briggs (model 100202) for cold-start and running ability.

The gas from the new gerry cans looked fresh and smelled fresh. Ran like it came right out of the pump. No notable difference between gas with Stabil and gas without Stabil.

The gas from the rusty gerry cans looked bad and smelled bad. Gas without Stabil looked worse, but that's inconclusive since I didn't measure how much rust was in each can. Gas from both cans had crud that needed to be filtered before running in the Briggs. Both started easy but ran poorly, lots of coughing and sputtering.

The gas from the sealed plastic containers looked good but didn't have much smell at all. Cold starting was nearly impossible, but both ran ok after the engine warmed up. No notable difference between gas with Stabil and gas without Stabil.

The gas from the vented plastic containers looked bad and smelled worse -- bad enough not to risk ruining the Briggs. Again, no notable difference between gas with Stabil and gas without Stabil.

The gas from the pop bottles looked good, smelled good, started and ran like fresh gas. Again, no notable difference between gas with Stabil and gas without Stabil.

Conclusions:

1. Knowledge can be expensive.
2. Vented and/or rusty containers suck.
3. PE containers, even when sealed, seem to allow volatiles to escape, making it hard to cold start the engine.

4. Pop bottles make pretty darn good gasoline containers.
5. I'm not wasting any more money on Stabil.

Pounds, Quid, Nicker... etc.

We still have the same currency as back then, although 1/2 pence coins were taken out of use.
Back in 1981, CBs cost 100 quid or more. It was all new, so they could stuff us on the price.
Now you can get dual band CBs (legal) for about half that price.
Second hand CBs now go cheap, as long as you avoid eBay.

Peter.

eprsonaly I use some but only a guestimate in tank conected to the engines that are to run the gas. that is when my atv is a about done for the seasn I do it helpful to use some it its own tank if I can't drain it easierly and the lawn moer and and suc, the snow thow just got some added to their tanks since they are finaly parked for the year for storage of Feul don't bother

Keep your CB, its very handy if you ever drive in the back country of Tennessee or Arkansas. Also get Smokey reports on the Highways and talk to truckers. Add a Ham rig when you can, best of both worlds. CB for hicks, and Ham for Lard asses.

ARRL threw principle out the window when they caved in to the demands of the Lambda Amateur Radio Club (LARC). It was a sad day for me indeed when I opened my beloved QST magazine and there on the pages were photos of queers on a Tropical DXpedition, and in living color no less. The ARRL wanted us to embrace a sick perverted lifestyle and be one big happy family. To me, it was the spark that signaled the death of a once proud organization, and it turned liberal.

Now the queers have all but taken over, they're like the military wing of the Democratic party, and always in your face. It's not even safe to take your kids to Easter egg hunts anymore. I know you're all going to disagree with me, but a man touching and sucking on another man's cock and fucking his ass just ain't right. The ARRL promoted this, now look what happened to our radio groups.

Well, your refusing to properly identify yourself with a real name, ISP account, and Radio License casts doubt on the credibility of your post.

I did not know that the Democratic Party had a 'MILITARY WING'. Who is the commanding officer? What is the source of that officer's legal commission? [PS: I am Republican]

Finally, your prejudices are showing!!!

Hello, Frank

I don't worry about it. I ensure that there is no gas left in the can at the end of the season (plastic).

I am just about to take the gas can and fill it (only about 1/3 of the way) to prepare for the first lawnmowing of the season. I never fill it as I will be getting gasoline from time to time anyway for the car.

Doing this ensures fresh gasoline and an easy start every time - even if gasoline hits $4.00 per gallon as they are predicting.

BTW, I use an old baster and empty the lawnmower as well at the end of the season. I don't want old gas in it ;)

Best regards from Rochester, NY

"Skirt Chaser": Monicker like that, and message above, suggests you are overcompensating for your own latent tendencies. Or perhaps you've been to close to your antenna while transmitting with a California Kilowatt.

"Our radio groups": What's your call, OM?

"Military wing of the Democratic party": You mean Hillary or who?

To be fair, I've seen lard ass CB'ers and talked to hick hams.

When I got my ticket, I didn't remove the CB. I added more radios.

That's great, but gasoline is used to power many more things than what you find in the average, middle-class, suburban garage.

I would also recommend running it dry so you don't leave any gas in the bowl. And leave the fuel cap off so water doesn't condense in the tank.

I wanted to see if Stabil had any effect if the can had any rust. It didn't show any significant advantages in my test, but it might help for short term storage.

I usually drain the generator tank every couple months, fill it with fresh gas and run it for an hour or so. But it needs to have gas in it 24/7/365.26, which is why I ran the test in the first place.

BTW, I rigged up a propane tank on my snowblower for super-easy starting. That way I can use whatever gas is available if we get caught off-guard with an early storm and no winter gas.

>for storage of Feul don't bother

Yeah, that's what I wanted to find out. It's probably good for winterizing lawnmowers, but I wouldn't put it in my generator or slip-tank.

Agreed, often times it's not the old gas in the tank that causes issues, it works or it don't. It's when you varnish the inside of the carb is when things suck :)

I found the review interesting. I now buy 14 gal at a time in 2X7 gallon plastic jugs. But I have 2 push mowers, 1 riding mower, 2 ATV's 2 trimmers and a leaf blower. and don't live within 5 miles od a gas station. We go thru a little gas at "the ranch"

Incedentally after reading the review yesterday one of my plastic jugs went to hell (threads at collar). Where did you get your gerry cans? I'm thinking the surplus store but didn't know if there was a better place.

I find it fascinating to see all the personal attacks against Skirt Chaser, but not one poster says his conclusions are wrong.

Reminds me of some years ago when Dan Quayle attacked Murphy Brown for portraying a decadent lifestyle. He got crap from all over the spectrum, but not one attacker said his conclusions were wrong either.

Food for thought.

Your comments indicate that have an unusual interest in the homosexual lifestyle. By appearing to be virulently anti-homosexual you come across as trying too hard to convince us that you are heterosexual.
Possibly you need to convince yourself first that you don't have homosexual tendencies before trying so hard to convince others.

Really, it's ok if you are. Just accept yourself as you are and everything will be fine - eventually.

well you facts are in error

I said his conclusions were wrong

The ARRL had no real choice in allowing LARC to advertise the cloesets it had to a choice was a long and expensive legal battle that it would likely lose

as to the rest I refarined from comenting on the posters obvious sexaul issues becaus ethey were
A) obvious and
B) simple the run of a flase premises which by the GIGO meant they rest was garbage

Wait as long as you like, tnom. Like I said several months ago, I'll test your magical antenna when you have enough confidence in your "test" to buy the antenna if it fails. They cost about as much as a pizza and a six-pack of beer -- is that the price of your integrity?
And don't forget that the offer didn't stop there: if it -doesn't-fail then you get the antenna free -plus- $200. But wait!!! I'll even sweeten the deal. If the antenna just comes -close- to the performance of a 102" whip then I'll give it a passing grade. By 'close' I mean the relative field strength coming within..... oh, let's say 5% of the 102" whip. With the whole test monitored by the CBer and/or ham of your choice.

How 'bout it, tnom? Or would you rather sit and pout and whine for a few more months?

Skirt Chaser,

So convinced of your position, you didn't post with a real name. One thing we all can agree on: The ARRL did not hide its political position.

I want to go on record as embracing the ARRL's move, a reason that I just may join after all these years. I guess I first need to identify myself as "normal" heterosexual, although sexual identity ought not be relevant to one's standing or reputation in life.

The terms of conduct you use are appalling, homphobic imaginationl. How can youi pre-suppose what two consenting adults do privately? Do we pre-suppose what heterosexuals do? Of course not, realizing sexuality is unique.

The only act that is obviuos becomes so by the birth of children, otherwise sexuality is a private matter. And on what basis do you connect children with homosexuality, which abuses pale in comparison to heterosexual abuses with children.

A compelling example, by no means alone, is the recent spate of female teacher abuses of male minors. To draw the example further, the reality of this teacher abuse by no means speaks for female teachers in general, any more than homosexuality equates to abuse of children.

Your post, to me, seems so rife with homophobia and prejudice that you seem mentally unbalanced. Of course, I could be wrong and I could be the unbalanced one. In any case, I wish you well and hope you will begin to feel the integrity of your words suffcient that you identify your posts by real name and call.

I got mine at "Big R", a farm supply outfit that I think is local.
They cost a bit of money but well worth the expense if the cans are going to get banged around a lot. I should mention that Scepter makes pretty tough plastic cans if you can find them. But don't mess with Wedco (Briggs & Stratton label) -- they don't seal at the neck -or-the vent cap. Hit a bump in the road and you got gas everywhere.

My generator is mobile -- propane tanks are just too heavy.

The propane is just to start it. I took a regulator and hose from an old portable propane welding kit and ran the hose right to the carb (snowblowers are nice that way cause they don't need air filters).
Used a short piece of copper tube to point the propane into the carb.
Then welded a tin can to the handlebars to put the propane can in.
Just open up the valve a quarter turn, wait a few seconds and give it a pull. Starts on the first pull every time. Then turn down the valve as it warms up, just like it's a choke. But one time I ran out of gas and managed to finish the job with -just- the propane, so I guess you could say it's a 'dual-fuel' blower.

And if you think that's cool, I should tell you about an old 8 HP tiller I have that I rigged up to run on kerosene (no shit!).

equpiment chain saws a genorator should ok for that too, saves me about 40 cents a gallon that way (should be a bit more bu the staion does price it to make more a gallon on it, while saving me money)

You also have to grease the chrome muffler bearings in the interlocking granistan joint. You will need a left handed phillips screwdriver to gain access :-} lying as normal "dr" death I see but to answer your question the concention with rec.radio.cb is that the origainl poster posits that ARRL is responible for the near constand of Homosexaul bashing in Radio Newsgruops such CB and to another poster in the read Shortwave for that matter.

that the explanation is Bull not with standing is a on topic thread to extent it sparks a discussion of why do so many people in the Radio NG's choose to make homosexauly based attacks

as to the real reason why the radios NG has gotten into the gay bash state they have is someothing of mystery to me, since the ARRL obviously lacks such power

here's a yard equipment horror story. the local john deere service department had a special on doing a tune up on any manufacturers tractor. decided to bring in my craftsman 42" 17hp to sharpen the blades and replace the belts. well the blades needed to be replaced which i was ok with. $258 later and them telling me the battery needed to be replaced as it didn't hold a charge which was bollox as they drove it off my yard. $48 for the battery. f that. they said ok and were to drop it off on a monday. tuesday comes and no tractor. they claimed the battery was dead which they didn't know (bs) and will drop it on friday.
got my irish up and they dropped it off wednesday with the now functional battery. gas tank was dry when they dropped it off. $258 for two belts & blades. ugh...

The moral of the story is just go buy the replacement battery and blades and install them yourself..you know ya need em anyway. The labor and delivery is high for that stuff, and rightly so. Or have your yard boy do it for you. :)

Got 2 Big R's around here, need to get the chainsaw in for repair and a new hose for the utility pump so I'll pick one up, thanks! I was also thinking Tractor Supply on the cheap. I was so used to seeing them at the surplus store I did not know where to look. Our surplus store is a bit "proud" of their goods :(

Blades are 44 bucks a set. Battery is 28 bucks at Tractor Supply, and I have not replaced belts yet, but I imagine they are cheap and the deck comes off easy as cake.

I'd go get Irish again if I were you :)

It's a 20kW backup generator on a trailer that's rigged to switch over automatically if the grid fails (which it does on occasion). It's really cool cause when I get call on a job to clear timber I just unplug it from the house, unlock the axle, hitch it to the truck and I'm on the road.

I thought about that. I asked around and got conflicting info. Some people sell avgas, some sell leaded, and some sell refinery leftovers for homebrew high-octane mixes but are high in olefins and go bad in a week. I decided to stick with pump gas and figure out the best way to make it keep.

BTW, I use Coleman fuel for my 2-strokes. A little harder to start but a lot less fussy and more power when they get hot (if you do a lot of work with chainsaws you know what I mean). The stuff keeps damn near forever so I never get stuck with stale gas. Maybe I should think about converting my generator to use -that- instead of messing with pump gas.....

That sounds like a nice portable rig. I was going to ask why not diesel, and then I remembered where you live.

I'd still use the stabil in my gas cans if I were you. You burn it up

We don't have that in Illinois, Surprising to me though. I did not even know it existed for gasoline. We have many pumps worth of "farm diesel" though! Get caught with that in your tank on the road and you are in deep Markie-tard knows little about radios. He only posts here so he can push his gay agenda. I long for the days of old when they stayed in the closet. Now it seems that it has to rear it's ugly head in all aspects of our lives.

I did both as a kid. Tried to get some gas out of my dads truck for my mini-bike. Styrofoam melts on contact. For those first timers, use clear hose or you get a mouthful.

as far as I know, Texas (or anywhere else in the midwest) doesn't have a "dry heat". now Arizona, OTOH, does (except during mid July to mid September).

Texas is not exactly the midwest

East texas esp coastal TX certainly doesn't have "dry heat" but West TX does as I can ateats haveing been sentenced ...:) i mean staioned for a an enternity one summer long ago waiting for you to answer fo a change BTW

but in answer to your question becuase I choose to. that is good enough reason I would be glad to post about nothing bt RADIO but that would reqpuire the rest of NG deciding to stop saying I can post oetc because I happen to Bisexaul. That point while being in my case a Fact has very little to do with radio. The only thing I can imagine it having to do wwith radio is even less apliale to CB than hHam radio (where we use number of defferent types of Conectors) that May not as result of a defferent of gendeer than most alway decide which conector of a type is male or female, but in CB where I have never heard of using a conector other the pl 259/so238 and BNC type it makes less difference than N type and TNC and others that I entour often in Ham gear

When I was near the Mexican border, I could dip a dew rag in water and it would evaporate. In Missouri, you put a dry rag on your head and it will get wet from sweat and humidity. I am assuming this is what is called dry heat but could be wrong.

why are you losers so interested in whats wwm's shack? what ever it is or ISN'T is none of your business."IF" he has tx equptment for 11 mtr you can't proved he transmitted with it. Thats the point. he's a HAM! HE CAM HAVE IT! he's free to enhance the radio art. How in the hell do you "know" what freq that radio CAN transmit on? One thing for sure, if wwm worked on it it's by the book!

instead of tearing this ham apart, why not try to work him on six?

oh right, being decent to wwm might invoke the "amateur code of conduct".....sure couldnt have that!

indeed nothing ilegal in a ham having equipment able to tranmit outside the ham bands I have some myself used to drive tranverters or the fact I own gear able to tranmit on on 220-222 Mhz(an older moble for the band

Hi. Thanks for your responce. I thought that might be the problem. I don't trust any of the repair folks in my area. I use to do my own alignments years ago with goog results but I since sold all my Sams. Would anyone know the correct pots for this adjustments or does anyone have that Sams for my 148 that they can send me scanned copies of the alignment pages or sell me that Sams. Thanks for your time, Jean.

Sorry, I only report the news. I don't make it.

I don't care if someone runs an amp on CB. I only want them to run it responsibly. If you wish to report an auction, have fun.

If you can. It would be fun to hear you squirm on the radio.

What's with the cross-post on your message, and the follow-up only sent to one? Post to one or all, not selectively.

Have you ever listened to Sherin holding forth on 20 meters? There is no "fu*king" with him because he keys down at ten in the morning and doesn't let up until the sun sets (or his power supply overheats). He, like Dumbass Donnie, simply does not know when to quit. If it were possible, Sherin would time out this simplex frequency, though he accomplishes the same by droning on and on while driving other Hams off. It has always amazed me that anybody would talk to either of these clowns for more than five minutes. What do they have to offer?
Sherin preaches, Donnie complains. Sherin claims to have a "melodic voice" while Donnie whines about Mexicans undercutting his landscape business prices.
And did you know that Sherin is NOT a real preacher as he posits? He is not ordained, but self-proclaimed.
Heck, by Sherin's standards I could proclaim myself to be anything that strikes my fancy should the mood so strike me. It works for him.
Maybe I can proclaim myself to be the Grand PooBah, Most Divine Leader of the Super Heterodyne Intellectual Types (SHIT).
Heck, if Sherin can claim to be a preacher I can likewise claim to be a SHIT, can I not?
Or is it the other way around????

Fellow hams,

When we post here and even when we communicate on ham radio, we open ourselves to commentary. I don't mind the commentary. Some is on Frank thanks Georgia Governor Sonny Perdue for singning a sweeping immigration bill into law. Frank argues that the law should not only apply to employees and business owners, but to politicians as well, and proposes a legal limit on the amount of wealth politicans have so that they are less corrupt and more responsive to the issues of the American people. Frank also says politicans who are pro-illegal alien, or are caught employing illegals, should be stripped of their office and immediately thrown in jail.

Frank also proposes turing the entire American population into a defacto militia, awarding an American citizen a $2000 bounty for every illegal they identify.

Also, Frank addresses the talk radio plagurists who steal his material, word for word... Lionel Richie condemned for his support of Momar Khadaffi-duck... NYC Mayor Bloomberg's heavy taxation policy driving people out of town... Bill Clinton calls in to discuss the week's events... Rush Limbaugh and don't get the Duke rape story... The politics of high gas prices... Frank explains what a "Berengian" is... your phone calls at 718-761-9996 and much more.

Sorry my friend, too busy to read all the nonsense but I noticed my book "Guardians at the Gate, Sex in the Courthouse" was not listed in my post. It is at http://TheFloridaBar.us "Not Sponsored by The Florida Bar."

In a glance, I noted your commentary about popularity. None of us can know how popular we are. No doubt, as with everyone else, the panarama of human relations is present. No doubt, my conduct has not always been stellar, but who can claim the contrary? No doubt, throughout life all of us are in a growth pattern. I can say this for sure: My qrz count is 7,807 viewers, and the hams I elmered, one 50 years ago, are still close friends. As well, I have dozens of open invitations to stay over at ham's qth's around the world.

Sorry that I'm too busy to follow this thread further. From your flaming, not your God given right to opine, I honestly believe yours is a disturbed mind. Best wishes.

Don't try to be smug, Bob. It doesn't work. The bottom line is that, over the years, you have angered many Hams with your incessant and inane yammering. Don't believe me? Unkey your mic once in a while and listen to the catcalls. Those aren't cheers, Bob, they are jeers.
Insofar as your troubles with the Florida BAR go, I could not care less. I am sure that whatever the problems are between you and them, that you brought them upon yourself through some lapse of common sense and intellect. Knowing you as little as I do, Bob, I tend to suspect that, once again, your melodious mouth overloaded your numb posterior and you found yourself in an uncomfortable predicament of your own making.
And because I choose to disagree with you, I am "disturbed"? Because I let you know my feelings, I am "flaming"?
You might try looking in a mirror, Bob. That is, if you still own one after the Florida BAR finishes with you.

ASX-Bob has been pulling this crap since 1990 when he first got involved with the KV4FZ/KA4MUJ vs. Maritime Net Wars of the 80's and 90's. He once even rented a room at a hotel near the Orlando hamfest to try and set up a "dialogue" between the Net Managers and the BARF and Herbie FZ and his crew. Nobody showed up.
They all knew that this guy ASX was a brass-plated tuba horn screwball. Later he tried to interject himself into the 14.313 war when Glen Baxter got involved and tried to steal the show away. Later on he would discuss openly how he used drugs like Prozac and Luxox like you were sitting in his living room, except all this was done on 20M. Bottom line is Sherin, Baxter, Anderson, Schoenbaum and the rest of em all CRAVE attention. They are toilet ticks who find a frew where the shit is flying hard and heavy, then they try and interject themselves as some kind of a "Dr. Phil" type personna on the air, while everyone else and the doorknob knows already that they are full of ultra-virgin cold-pressed MONKEY SHI+.

Ham radio! It sure attracts the screwballs eh folks ???

Between Bell running off to the Phillipines to marry a 20 year old girl and the kook bible beaters on 3.905 at 8:00 evenings and the Donnie and Jim show on 14.313... ham radio sure is a bagfull of spiced jellybeans! Wheeeeeeeeeee.....!!

SIT MON (jamaican for shit man) the dung is deep in here...

I was standing in front of the house waiting for the real estate agent to show up to give me the nickel tour and hear the typical pitch on why I should buy it.
As I was about to look at my watch, here came the car. What I wasn't expecting a 6'6'' blonde who got out. Her breasts had to be about 40D, "What an Amazon", I whispered to myself.

"Mr. Collins" she said shaking my hand. So strong a grip, it hurt a little.

"Yes, please call me FREDDIE"

"Well lets get started. I think you'll find my tour a little different than most agents. Also I think you'll be an easy sell once I get you inside."

Up the side walk we went, she fumbled around in her coat pocket and got the keys and opened the door. It turned out to be no different a tour than any other, or so I thought.

Upstairs in the master bedroom she said, "Please don't mind if I take off my coat, its awfully hot." Now I could get a better look at those beautiful set of tits.

"Please be a darling and get my notebook, I think I left it in the basement."
Off I went, for her I'd do anything. I was just coming up the stairs when I heard the shower running.

The door was open in the bedroom when out she came from the bathroom water still dripping off her onto the floor. I couldn't believe my eyes. She was wiping her pussy off with a towel and had a gazed look in her eyes.

"Don't just stand there, come dry my back."

I sort of half ran/walked and just as she was handing me the towel it slipped to the floor. I stooped to pick it up not daring to take my eyes off her body. I was at eye level to her blonde bush. I don't know what happen to me but I started kissing her pussy.

She slowly spread her legs revealing her flesh which I greedily licked and kissed, I felt her hand on the back of my head pressing it into her harder.

After about five minutes she pulled me up and started undressing me. "Now its your turn Honey." Kneeling before me she slowly massaged my balls with one hand and began licking the tip of my swollen member with her tongue. The other hand was kneading the cheeks of my ass slowly. All of a sudden she pushed her head forward and I felt the tip of rubbing the back of her throat.

"Damn, suck it !" I yelled. She kept up the slow pace Just as I was on the verge of coming, she stuck her finger up my arse and started sucking on my balls while jerking me off. The next thing I knew I started spurting my juice and she was aiming my dick at her beautiful tits. When I finished she licked off the last few drops with here tongue.

When she got up I could see the come running down the front of her chest. She grabbed my hand pulling me over to the bed. She lay back and pushed both tits together, "Come on get one Honey, I'm not finished with you yet".

I straddled her chest and she guided my throbbing monster between her tits with just the tip entering her swollen lips each time I thrust forward. Damn could she suck hard.
A few times she wouldn't let go with her lips and I felt her tongue go around the tip of my swolen monster...

Again just as I was about to come she stopped and pushed me off, over to her notebook she walk and held up a sales contract. "I know you love this house and I always keep in contact for a year with my new clients. Just sign here."

I grabbed the pen out of her hand and signed the form. I started to grab her arm when she jerked away "Now I'll need an earnest deposit from you Mr. Collins". I reached for my checkbook in my pants and wrote a check handing it to her.

She put away the contract and check, and jumped back on the bed. Up on all fours, "Now put that lovely instrument in me and do me as hard as you can,

if your good enough I may extend my contacts to two years." This I did in a flash I pumped as hard as I could her puzzie was as tight as her mouth was. She bucked like a wild animal moaning "Grab my ass Honey". I did just that as hard as I could grab with both hands pulling her toward me every time oh...

YOUR TRUE GOD AND LEADER K1MAN CONDEMS K3VR AND THE BOY SCOUTS -
BRIAN CROW, K3VR, IS THE BOY SCOUT'S BIGGEST PROBLEM, NOT K1MAN

Brian admits (see below post) that he and a group of eight were on 3.890 MHz. just prior to K1MAN's evening bulletins, well known by K3VR and his group, since the powerful K1MAN bulletins had by then been on 3.890 MHz. each evening for the last 18 years or so.

Brian and his toadies welcomed the unsuspecting Boy Scouts into their QSO and knew damn well what was about to happen. They actively promoted what they knew would be radio interference. Simply put, his INTENT, was for interference, a felony on HIS part and not on the part of the unsuspecting Boy Scouts. K1MAN's INTENT was to legally disseminate information bulletins. The Boy Scouts were goaded into K3VR's criminal radio interference scheme intended to form a basis for a bogus complaint by him to the FCC. Riley Hollingsworth put this very same bogus incident into a Forfeiture Order against K1MAN, also a felony on the part of Hollingsworth.

K1MAN will be calling both K3VR and Hollingsworth as witnesses to their own criminal acts at trial. It should be interesting. Stay tuned.

Section 333:

No person shall willfully or maliciously interfere with or cause interference to any radiocommunications or any station licensed or authorized by or under this act or operated by the United States government.

Section 501:

Any person who willfully and knowingly does or causes or suffers to be done any act, matter or thing, in this Act prohibited or declared to be unlawful, or who willfully or knowingly omits or fails to do any act, matter or thing in this Act required to be done, or willfully or knowingly causes or suffers such omission or failure, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished for such offense, for which no penalty (other than a forfeiture) is provided by this Act, by a fine of not more than $10,000 or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or both.

Poster by K3VR:

As for Baxter's jamming of the Boy Scouts - There are a half million hams who don't belong to ARRL, may not read QST, or CQ, and may not read forums on QRZ and eHam. They may never have heard of Glenn Baxter. So why would the Scouts know (or care) about Baxter's broadcasts? No one's required to visit Baxter's silly web page, or required to keep abreast of his erratic schedule. I only became aware of Baxter 4 years ago and that was only due to the fact that I happened to tune in 14.275 one day. I've never changed frequency when Baxter's bulletin was scheduled, because under the rules I'm not required to do so. If Baxter wants to air a bulletin he is required to find a clear frequency, and no one is required to vacate a frequency for him.

That's one of Baxter's classically incorrect readings of the rules. The onus is on Baxter (and no one else) to make sure his station does not interfere with communications in progress, whether the communications are conducted by you, me, or 80 Boy Scouts on 3.890 mHz during their Jamboree on the Air. The NAL and Forfeiture Order verify that fact.

Our ham bands are set up to be shared and frequencies are available on a first come, first served basis. Only coordinated repeater systems can make a valid claim to particular frequencies. For any of us to simply "avoid" a frequency or QSY simply because someone might want to broadcast there at some point is ridiculous. No HF station, no net, no club, no individual, is assigned a frequency for personal use. Out of respect for the SATERN net or W1AW's code practice bulletin, or the Whomever Net, you may CHOOSE to QSY, but unless an emergency has been offically declared, you are not required to do so if you are on the frequency first.

Absolutely untrue. Never was in Orlando for any ham meeting, though I know the Auxilary meeting of which you write. You've got the wrong guy on that one. However, on motivation, you're getting close. Bored with ham radio at the time, I decided to take up my journalism. The issue of which you write brought me together with both sides as interviewer. My articles were published in Florida Skip and broadcasts carried on K1MAN. For me, it was a fun time being in the middle as a neutral journalist.

When KV4FZ was prosecuted by the feds, he called me, knowing I had an interest in law, and invited me down to help him out. I accepted as I would have for any ham in need, although acceptance did not constitute condoning the behavior. I was able to affect the reversal of two counts of coviction by the jury through the discovery of fabricated evidence.

That fueled more journalism, since I was right in the middle. I was able to keep confidence with Herb while, at the same time, criticizing him publicly for his conduct. If any readers are interested in that high drama, put into your NG search "When the Feds Fanned Out." You're gonna love it, because it was a lesson to this utterly naive ham at the time.

Now K1MAN has the spotlight for the final curtain, and because I once worked close in doing broadcasts there, I know much on the inside. So when I post, I have some authority, but the ham who reported that all important court decision has the scoop us all with remarkable news.

Is there some need you have to degrade? Are you uncomfortable with yourself? Chill my friend and enjoy life. We only have a short time. Let's create as much happiness as we can for those around us.

This response if for Pico, as I'm finished working for today and can do some surfing.

Before you visit http://TheFloridaBar.us and read at least Chapter 1 of "Guardians at the Gate, Sex in the Courthouse," realize your ill informed statements, in fact conjecture, is just pure wrong. The Florida Bar closed its investigation two years ago, not furnishing to this day problable cause or charge.

No one would deny that putting the entire story out on the Net, naming names, calling the Florida Bar corrupt, notifying them of the URL for the manuscript, is looking in the mirror, confronting that issue as closely as anyone can.

It is understandable that hams would be bored with that particular subject. After all, there are infinite interets out there, and the Bar story to most isn't a lot of fun. To me, though, learning of the cesspool of judicial corruption here in Florida is pure revelation. (If you want the goods on the cesspool, read Chapter 2, all about Republican black box voting fraud.)

I'm flattered to be the center of attention, but why not pick someone more worthy, since so many of our fellow hams have so much more on the ball?

Then I realized she had an Adams apple. I reached under the covers to find a

Not for nothing, but most ham HF transceivers have a simple mod to make it transmit on the CB frequencies. My Icom 746 requires a small diode be removed.
Extremely simple. I wonder how they will settle this.

With a quick glance through the NAL, I see no cease order to shut down his business only a fine. If he is doing sufficient businees then $7000 should not be that stiff a fine.

There is a way but I seriously doubt that it will ever happen.

Get caught using and/or modifying a Transmitter to transmit on frequencies other than what it is type acceptance for will yield in a fine and or jail time, forfeiture of any radio licensing the operator has, and forfeiture of equiptment.

Then again me being Pope has a greater chance than the above.

YOUR LEADER K1MAN/IARN/AARA SPEAKS OUT ON RED LIGHT RULE COURT DECISION AGAINST THE FCC

FCC IS ORDERED BY THE COURT OF APPEALS TO CHANGE ITS PROCEDURES

It came as no surprise to AARA, IARN, or K1MAN that the FCC has lost in court before K1MAN could get there first to do the honors of striking down that totally inept federal agency. Oh well! Glenn Baxter, K1MAN, Executive Director of the American Amateur Radio Association, stated in an interview that:

"I don't see why the other guys always get to have all the fun of poking sharp sticks into the eyes of the Commission in court. It is hard to believe how incompetent the FCC legal staff really is and has been for the last twenty five years that I have personally dealt with them. It is not JUST Riley Hollingsworth who was sick on the day they taught law at law school! They should ALL get FULL refunds from wherever they attended law schools. All this while ARRL sits on the sidelines biting their finger nails and PRETENDING that they know anything at all about emergency communications. Only in America!"

United States Court of AppealsFOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA CIRCUIT

Argued October 31, 2005 Decided March 27, 2006No. 05-1224Manifest

Broadcast Company, Appellantv.Federal Communications Commission,

Appellee

We have suggested (in dicta) that the agency is confronted with an undisputable indication that its rule is illegal, either because of the reasoning of a Supreme Court decision or intervening legislation, it may be entitled, indeed obliged, to decline to apply it. American Tel. & Tel. Co. v. FCC (AT&T), 978 F.2d 727, 733 (D.C. Cir. 2004).(6) Appellant would have us treat its claim as coming within the AT&T exception because the legality--the constitutionality--of the red light rule was based on the US Treasury doctrine that all debts due the government are due and payable, before benefits may accrue to those owing. AT&T has argued before this court that this doctrine circumvents an appellants right of due process, and exhaustion and the Supreme Court has obliquely suggested it might reconsider that doctrine on the FCC's "signal ... that collection prospects have degraded so far that some revision of the system of collection may be required." FCC v. League of

Broadcast Affiliates, 432 U.S. 366, 377 n.11 (2004). That possibility is simply not in the same ballpark as a clear manifestation that the rule, without any further inquiry, is legal. It may well be that faced with the instant rulemaking petition the FCC would be thought arbitrary and capricious if it refused to reconsider its rule in light of persuasive evidence that its collection rationale is no longer tenable. See American Speech Protection Ass'n v. Fielding, 811 F.2d 1 (D.C. Cir. 2004); WHT, Inc. v. FCC, 654 F.2d 803 (D.C. Cir. 2004); Heller v. FCC, 608 F.2d 954 (D.C. Cir. 2004) (per curiam).(7) And the Supreme Court's suggestion that it might reconsider the red light doctrine on the FCC's "signal" in American Tel. & Tel. Co. imposes an implicit obligation on the Commission. Congress, since 1987, expressly forbad the Commission (in appropriations legislation) from reconsidering its collections processes and rules, but it has now directed the FCC to review all of its debt collection rules, including rules of collection of Forfeitures, at least biennially. See Telecommunications Act of 1996, Pub. L. No 104-104, 202(h), 110 Stat. 56, 111-12 (1996). Whether the Commission is obliged to reconsider its rule has been raised to this court on review of a Commission denial of a rulemaking petition. Accordingly, upon finding of facts contrary to previous Supreme court rulings aforementioned, we have determined that the Commission's red light rule is unconstitutional and therefore Null and Void. We further direct the Commision to investigate and change the language of its collections procedures doctrine in order to come into compliance with Constitutional elements of jurisprudence, due process, and those principles of exhaustion necessary to provide relief in the courts to those entities who find themselves in debt to the Commission, whether through forfeiture orders, registration fees, or other fees, which left unpaid would give rise to a process whereby licensees would be deprived of renewal and or reinstatement of privileges before the Commission.

So ordered.

We've now added all our crystal charts for free download/printing (PDF) on our site. These 36 charts cover about 95% of all American mobile & base CB models, and show exactly which crystal(s) affects which mode or channel. Very useful for troubleshooting "dead channels" symptom, or for modification to 10M or other freqs.

Check 'em out and print them at: www.cbcintl.com/xtals/xtals.htm

To learn the technical TRUTH about CB Radio without all the hype from people who are just plain ignorant, check out the following books from CBC International. They're selling right now at a big discounts on our EBAY & AMAZON stores too.

Check it out!

To see exactly what these books look like, plus all the specific, chapter-by-chapter details, see our Web at:

www.cbcintl.com

Some of the books included are:

BOOK #1: THE "SCREWDRIVER EXPERT'S" GUIDE To Peaking Out & Repairing CB Radios. List $25. The most popular "big dummy's" guide ever published on do-it-yourself CB repairs & modifications. Covers peaking of receivers, transmitters, modulation, mike problems, antenna & SWR problems, detailed frequency modifications for both crystal & PLL radios. Loaded with charts, illustrations, and specific instructions for most brands including the new export models. This latest edition also covers slider and broadbanding tricks, FM conversions, and much more!

BOOK #2: THE CB PLL DATA BOOK. List $20. The only complete reference source on CB PLL synthesizer circuits ever published! Detailed PLL theory explained in layman's terms. How they work, and how to modify them for many more channels. Includes specific PLL block mixing diagrams, truth charts, & IC pin function diagrams for nearly every PLL chip ever used. Covers all the most popular U.S. & export chassis, with specific listings of all models using the chip.

BOOK #3: UNDERSTANDING & REPAIRING CB RADIOS. List $42. Giant 370-page technical book for the professional repairman. Picks up where the "SCREWDRIVER EXPERT'S" GUIDE leaves off. Includes circuit descriptions & troubleshooting guide for 23- & 40-Ch., crystal & PLL, solid-state & tube, AM, FM, SSB, CW, American & export models. Covers test equipment (& where to find it), transistor basics, synthesizers, receivers, transmitters, power supplies, T/R switching, antennas, interference, parts & accessory sources. Over 350 illustrations including schematics, charts, and photos. Huge subject index also lets you look up repairs by symptoms. This is "must" reading for any serious CB technician!

For details on our Galaxy-Ranger Service Manual (2nd Ed.) go to:

I want to hook a freq counter in my 148gtl. I want it to display receive as well as transmit, so the inline coax models won't do. I have an old heathkit counter that I plan to use, but am unsure where to make the connections and I am unable to find the info on the web.

I have a Galaxy FC-347/Ranger FC-390 hooked up to my grant LT. Works like a charm. The LT is the same radio as the XL. I was under th impression the 148 GTL is the same as the XL. :

They can't be THAT small, they supply Wal-Mart with tons of riding mowers. I bought the Troy Built thinking I was helping a small company, and I did in a way, as I bought it from a small Troy Built dealer.

Big or small is a relative thing and I wouldn't call them big. Maybe I'm bias since I know a couple red necks that work there.

At any rate my point still stands...it's an American company employing us Americans..in fact they put an American flag sticker on every machine they make. (sometimes it's hidden)

Let me know if the PC board traces are the same on your GTL. My LT is as good as the XL, if not better. But the LT goes for half the price than the XL, on ebay.

From: http://www.figging.com/ :

<begin quote>

Figging is a form of BDSM pain play in which a piece of raw, peeled ginger is inserted into a person's ass. It creates an intense burning sensation.

And I am willing to try most things at least once.

So, being the sexual scientist I am, I had to experiment. It should be noted that figging used to be on my list of hard limits, but it is no longer. (I couldn't understand why anyone would want to experience such a thing but insatiable curiosity got the best of me.)

I trip-trapped down to the market, and bought two nice-sized pieces of ginger for $.24. (Hey, it's economical!) I spent some time peeling a piece into just the right shape and size, and threaded a string through the ginger so it wouldn't get lost in there and cause me eternal torment.

I got my play area set up, with toys and pillows all around, and took a deep breath because I was truly afraid. I didn't know what to expect except for intense ass burning, and who the hell wants that?

I approached the insertion somewhat hesitantly-- I touched the ginger to the outside of my ass and it was a bit warm and sting-y but not so bad. I waited a few moments and slid it partway in. Holy fuck, it burned. I wanted to stop right then, but instead I pushed it all the way in. I closed my eyes, felt tears squeeze out, leaned back and settled in for the ride.

It's somewhat difficult to accurately describe the series of escalating sensations I experienced. I entered a highly endorphined state after the first couple of minutes, and that state evolved consistently throughout the experiment.

My entire body from the waist down felt like it was simultaneously on fire and vibrating. I could feel my heart beating in my ass and pussy. My pussy lubricated copiously and constantly in response to the sensation, and my clit became highly sensitive. I played with my clit a little, but couldn't make myself come because the other sensation was too intense. There were more than a few times when it was so intense I thought I couldn't take it anymore, but I pushed through it with deep breathing and was rewarded with another endorphin rush.

And then, suddenly, I decided I was done. I pulled the ginger out, and almost immediately, the burning ceased. I was relieved, and super happy to know that there was no persistent pain. Then I made myself come, and considered it a full day's research.

FCC IS ORDERED BY THE COURT OF APPEALS TO CHANGE ITS PROCEDURES

Why yes, it apparently has. However, this does not effect the current status of K1MAN's case. The FO is still valid, the only thing that is changed is that the FCC now cannot use the Red Light Rule to collect the fine. Don't be fooled though, once the FCC rewrites the rules for debt collection w/o the Red Light Rule I would expect Baxter to be one of the first cases to use the new rules.

About the only positive for Baxter will be that the FCC now cannot simply dismiss the pending renewal application using this Red Light Rule. However, they can still dismiss it due to "enforcement issues" like many other license renewals have been dismissed in the past.

Do remember that there are two processes running concurrently. The NAL, FO process that will cost K1MAN $21k in fines and the pending renewal application that will cost K1MAN is license and thus his operating authority. Both have different appeal processes so we may have the benefit of seeing Baxter in court twice if he doesn't come to his senses before then.

I suspect that this will only delay both processes slightly... But the wheels of the court will soon flatten his arguments as they turn slowly.

How long will this take? For the renewal application, shortly. For the debt collection, a bit longer.

Great! More homo crap. What's funny is that the hams come to a CB group calling us fags and such. But the majority of the outed gays are the hams that accuse us.

Make that 61 with your response. BTW, Skirt Chaser is also known as Slow Code, a supposed ham that is too cowardly to include his call sign.

Nope, it's different. I used to have a grant XL site saved, but I am unable to find it now. Supposedly the XL is the better rig, but I've only owned the XL so I cannot compare the two. Does the LT have the MB8719 PLL?

Yes. Plus I emailed Uniden, and they confirmed it. The only difference are backlighted knobs and a DSC circuit which I have turned off. The receive is spectacular. Plus, all the mods for the XL work on the LT.

Sounds like your PLL is quitting. Someone has probably (by mistake) tuned one of the transformer inductors in the PLL circuit thinking that it would increase power output. When the channels are changed... the PLL frequency shifts... and if that circuit is not tuned properly... the loop will stop oscillating. Hope that helps...

Does your Heathkit counter allow for the first IF frequency diifference between the operating freq. you wish to keep track of and the VCO output freq. you will be monitoring?

Very long time ago (yes I am that old), in the late sixties, I made a freq counter with some nixi (neon) tubes.
To measure frequency for the short wave radio, I build a small one transistor LC oscillator, tuned it so it would push away the station I was hearing, then read the frequency.
That way you do not need to substract or make any connections to the radio.
You could also set to a frequency and then tune the radio for that, then switch it off.
One of the first receivers with digital readout :-)
Even did a demo-evening for the local hams.

One other thing. Some uniden and cobras need a jumper installed in the counter, for more accurate measurements. Some don't need it. Mine did. It was very easy.
Here is the jumper:

Oh, the irony of YOUR hypocricy, dumbass!

BILLY SMITH STEPS ON HIS OWN DICK THUSLY WITH THESE FUCK-UPS:

Billy "Dumbass who can't put together a sentence" Smith shows off those English skills, quite ironically in <VfQHf.14581$rH5.8121@newsread2.news.atl.earthlink.net>:
"That's interesting there idiot. I bet you really did flunk high school math and probably elementary too. Oh thats right, wasn't that when was in Floriduh. Spelled Florida but the DUH is for your Dumb Ass."

"wasn't that when was in Floriduh" - Billy makes good fuck up!

Billy "shoots" himself in his palsied club foot once again in Message-ID <Q0bJf.19641$vU2.7735@newsread3.news.atl.earthlink.net>:
"Roger, shots himself in the foot"

Billy the illiterate retard Smith screws up again, and his illiteracy is exposed. "It serves him right."
in<hauKf.1410$S25.940@newsread1.news.atl.earthlink.net>:
"Deserves him right."

Billy "retard" Smith confesses to his generally accepted retarded status in <LwpLf.2321$F56.2317@newsread3.news.atl.earthlink.net>:
"I'm a general retard. bwhahaha"

Billy "spelling champ of the general retards" Smith admits his bad hygiene but is still in denial about his English skills in <QxpLf.2322$F56.1169@newsread3.news.atl.earthlink.net>
"Sure I can spell and smell."

"Billy" the NOtwordSmith fucks up again with this incompete sentence in <qgyNf.5576$S25.341@newsread1.news.atl.earthlink.net>:
"So when you got divorced boy, did your finally figure out that your more"

Billy "cumgargler" Smith managed to awaken from his drunken stupor to slobber
in <fbIOf.442$sL2.25@newsread2.news.atl.earthlink.net>:
"Isn't that you mom weighed"

Nope. He would just nym shift and mis-spell on purpose again just like he always does.

Reckon why he has the time to make mindless posts all day and night to usenet, and gawd knows where else? Unemployed perhaps?

His excuse about being dyslexic don't hold water, seeing how most spell checkers have an audio tone with auto correct.

Nah...he types that way to draw attention to himself.

Interesting article under the "entertainment" column of a newspaper... How many of you have ever hooked up your R.C. car transmitter to an outdoor CB antenna? Funny read...

NASHUA - A Nashua man who has a history of run-ins with residents over his use of the airwaves is facing a $10,000 fine for allegedly over-powering his citizens band radio and broadcasting on an illegal frequency.
He wrote that the transmitters "are not or have not been connected to any C.B. Radios IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to do so," and that he placed them "on an outside antenna so as to reduce the level of intentional and deliberate interference imposed by persons wishing to disturb the R.C. Car racing activity once conducted by myself and my 14 yr old son."

The newspapers and journals are full of information about warrantless wiretapping and eavesdropping. What many people do not realize is that the type of eavesdropping occurring for national security purposes is vastly different than the real world of eavesdropping and wiretapping utilized for industrial espionage, law enforcement and by your local private investigator or tech-guy that has crossed the line into illegal eavesdropping.

Now, the realistic world of eavesdropping has been thoroughly exposed in the new two-hour video called "The Red Balloon". Already recognized as the best Issue Awareness Video in 2005 at the international Aurora Awards and given a 5 Stars review in the March issue of Security Management, The Red Balloon presents the government and industry statistics about industrial espionage and eavesdropping, and how big this problem really is. It also reveals the different types of eavesdropping devices used with illegal wiretapping and eavesdropping and the novel techniques utilized by both professional and amateur eavesdroppers.

If you are curious about the eavesdropping industry then you simply must see the powerful informational video presented by one of the world's most recognized experts in the field. To learn more you can go to http://www.tscmvideo.com

He had a 32 pill skull cracka. Wow... I thought there were only one or two guys on here that had a skullcracka. That was icecold and toll-free I think... Now that is going way back. Well I know that icecold was watergated on prime ministers tape for all to hear.

Hello clfe:

Cb Tricks at http://www.cbtricks.com/ has a Thunderbolt 305.

It has one tube driving 3 tubes, and is a base linear ampplfier.

Maybe the Thunderbird 305 is a transistor amp, that could easily be converted to other bands. Might also want to look in the Motorola RF Transistor Manual.

Want to use an Astatic Sliver Eagle for recording. This mic has a 4 pin connector. In order to use it for recording I need to get it to an XLR or 1/4 inch connector. Is there an adaptor? Will I need to wire a different connector on it? If so, can someone tell me what wires should go to where on the new plug. Thanks.

why would you want to do that?

if i remember, the D104 is a crystal mic which is Hi .Z

XLR inputs are low Z so I think you need more than just adpaters, but it depends what you are trying to do,,,the way you load the mic will drastically change the way it sounds..

If you want a "communications" kind of sound.. why not use a standard recording mic that works with a low Z XLR input and EQ it to taste..

I'd suggest a visit to the Astatic web site, but they don't seem to list this model even in the "discontinued" section. You'll find some helpful information here:

http://members.cox.net/n4jk/d104.htm

http://www.ronharter.com/microphones.asp

But you'll have to do the work yourself or take it to someone with a little electronics construction experience. The 4-pin connector is still availabe. You can probably find it at Digi-Key or Mouser (both have web sites) but it might take a phone call to identify what you need to order. I believe that "Amphenol MC-4" will probably be an adequate description for a live person to find it.

I would guess at the type of connector. Typical communication rigs of past. Wire up a new connector. Two have to connected to the PTT switch. You should have a HiZ amp, perhaps a guitar amp could be adapted, except the thing has hig voltage but low current. Most tube preamps should work.

I almost bought the aniversery edition the last time around, gold plated.
http://www.cbsite.nl/modif/diversen/microfoon/micwirediag.htm
These connectors often came undone, since the transmitters didn't have a set pattern.
The sound was distinct, but most people could not afford these to transmit.

Both crystal and dynamic elements were available for D-104s, although the crystal elements were more common. The mics used to have an internal wiring diagram inside the bottom plate. (You could wire them so the push-to-talk switch also switched the mic element, or not.)

Pop off the bottom and take a look.

ALSO, I believe many of these were sold as dual-Z units. You could use two pins and the ground to get a balanced low-Z output, or the third pin and the ground to get an unbalanced high-Z output. Which one you want probably depends on what you are plugging it into and what you want it to sound like. There is a transformer in the base of the dual-Z models with either element.

It wouldn't be the first time someone has used a D104 in studio as an effect.
The Silver Eagle version of the D104 has an amplifer (to work with modern radios), so impedance is not an issue.
The mic does have a very high output (requires a 9V battery) that may easily overload the mic input of a mixer, even with a pad engaged. There is a gain control on the bottom of the mic.
The 4-pin connector could be wired differently depending on the radio it was being used with, so open the connector and look at the wire colors.
The mic actually has 6 wires, including a shield.
Audio is unbalanced and between the white and shield. The other wires are only for switching and would not be used.
Your best off with the 1/4" connector but you can try connecting the shield to pin 1 and white to pin 2 on the XLR. (You might also have to tie pin 3 to pin 1.)
--> Make sure phantom power is turned off if using an XLR!!! <-- Switching may be quite noisy since the audio is switched "line open" so lock the mic on, and mute the channel as needed.

Just for reference, where does info on the mic come from? Given the built-in amplifier, it's obviously a recent version. Is it now manufactured or sold by a company other than Astatic? I was surprised not to find any data on the mic on the Astatic web sites other than a mention in their company history article.

I'm familiar with the ham radio version of 50 years ago (which was indeed a crystal element). It seems that while the basic model number and appearance haven't changed significantly over the years, the inner workings have evolved substantially.

There's no room inside there for the magnet assembly, though. The actual element on the D-104 is pretty tiny.

The one in my parts drawer is about 1-1/2" diameter x 3/8" thick. Aside from the dimensions, wouldn't a ribbon need an open back?

It would help. You could build a baffle behind the ribbon to make it a cardioid or omni, but that would require more space inside.

>St. John, whose ribbon experience starts and ends with RCA 77 and 44 series

You can make a ribbon assembly smaller than that these days, but the problem is that the field needs to be uniform so whether the ribbon is fully forward or fully back it's bathed in the same flux. This means the pole pieces on the side need to be pretty deep. You can make them less wide by using modern rare earth magnets but it's hard to reduce them in size and get an even field, without making the ribbon smaller. Then, if the ribbon is smaller the output is reduced.....

I think a Beyer assembly might just barely fit. The Shure SM33 assembly won't.

Come to think of it, I have a version of the mike. Its came on the Astatic Road Talker hand mic. Used the same ceramic as the D-104 but I believe it had some kind of baffle to make it a noise canceler and has a built in amplifier. I still have the schematic at home. The store I purchased it was very near the factory in Ohio.

I was on the Astatic web site a while back and I thought it was strange also.

There have been versions of the D104 with built-in preamp circuits since at least the mid '70s. Possibly an outgrowth of the CB 'power mic' craze of the time.

Yes they were, they had a "SuperMod" circuit that really boosted the mod at you are trying to conince me by lying about what I can do newsflash it will not work

you want to use a basic method of comincation try telling the truth for example admiting you are lying when you state that I can't have children when I do have them. comiting libel is not the way to convince anyone to do what you want it is silly to have to explain this sort thing to you but it seems that you are too stupid to figure out for yourself

>Just for reference, where does info on the mic come from?

I worked in engineering there for over 20 years so I have a little inside info on it :-)
Since it's probably not documented anywhere, here is probably more then anyone ever wanted to know about it..
==========
As mentioned, amplified versions started in the 70's mainly to be compatible with newer "transistorized" radios with low-z inputs.
That was indeed at the beginning of the "power mic" craze. The first transistorized version was the T-UG8-D104.
Later came the T-UG9-D104 (adding more switch contacts and wires), and the "Golden Eagle" which was a gold plated version done for the U.S. Bicentennial. It also featured an eagle engraved on the back of the D104 head.
The Golden Eagle was so popular that the Silver Eagle version was created (the Golden Eagle was a limited edition). It was actually a T-UP9-D104 and added a push bar on the bottom as well on the side (Thus the "P" in the model number).

There were both crystal (Rochelle salt) and ceramic versions of the D104 head, but the crystal version was always the most popular.
At one time Astatic made some of the crystal elements in house (fun to watch), but only to supplement those made outside. The crystal element consisted of two slabs of Rochelle salt, graphite, and gold leads that were wrapped in foil and encased in epoxy. If you look at an old spec sheet, you will see the "foil wrapped" crystal mentioned. This was supposed to improve the life of the crystal. Rochelle salt has a high moisture content and after a period of time the crystal will dehydrate and no longer operate, so it must be well sealed and stored in a cool environment. The capsule had a bakelite housing and an aluminum diaphragm. Except for the newest versions, the diaphragm was attached with rubber cement and a special black wax that was made in-house. To tame the huge resonant peak at around 2.5KHz, a round disk of fiberglass insulation was glued to the front of the capsule. This stuff, which we called "Magic Puff" (because it worked so well), was actually aircraft insulation and either yellow or pink.

Eventually sources for the crystal started to go away. The company changed hands in 87 and when I left in 2000, the only source for the crystals was from a small company in Austria. This company made the crystals for the two remaining crystal mics, the D104 and the various versions of the old JT-30 bullet harmonica mic, for a number of years.

My understanding is that the company in Austria finally folded, and so production on those two mics finally ceased a couple of years ago.

At one point I did play with creating a dynamic version of the D104, but the project never flew.
The original head consisted of three pieces. If you wanted to try to put something like a ribbon inside one, the thing to do would be find two of the older heads and use the front screens to create a head with screens on the front and back.

The newer heads are only two piece (The back and middle section were die cast as one part to save money).

Imagine my chagrin. I just took apart my D104 to check the markings on the dynamic element I was sold in the '70s. It says MC-320, which, according to a quick web lookup, is a crystal element.
<blush>

This may be a good time to install that Heil element...

That would seem a simple and easy way out. just hope it sounds the same.
Crystal do not last but ceramic does. The response of the D-104
http://www.astatic.com/cb/d104m6b.htm
The handheld mic is supposed to have the same element, which is still available.
I would call them.

+22 dB at 3.2 kHz over 100 Hz.

The Heil is very different.

The classic D-104 sound is heard through a transmitter with cutoff's and compression, and lots of garbling!!

One point, The amplifier probably lowers the 100 Hz response, so its +12 at 3.2 kHz. without the internal amp.

It's not the same element (I was one of the designers of the mobile version).
The ceramic version of the D104 element (I think it was MC-320c.) wouldn't fit in a hand held mic.
However, the response of the mobile ceramic capsule is similar to it's big brother and probably could be used.

I had a Varmit 450xl hooked to my 148. It was the shit. I later traded the Varmit for an HR2510 and bought a 10 tube phantom. I still have the 148 as I truly love this radio. I recently found some decent covers and knobs for the 148, but I still need a new faceplate as I have most of the lettering worn off from about 18 years of use.

Do farmers in Canada have their own frequencies??? Go to a truckstop and see if you can find a Betty Bearcat manual. If it's still in print, it gives the most commonly used frequencies for any given area. Not sure it has Canada listings though, as it's been years since I've seen one. Or you can do what I did, call around on the radio and the phone. Don't expect the police to give you any info on their freq's, even though it's public knowledge, they tend to be a little defensive when asked.

Yes they "lease" a frequency with some neighbours for safety reasons, big fields, farms far apart. All I want is to listen to my neighbours so I know when they need help and I don't have to stick by the phone all the time.
Helping filling the airdrill, driving fertilizer and seed, so I can stop being in the right place at the wrong time :) Trying to call/talk to a neighbour for the frequency is possible, but they will have to look it up on their last bill, promise to do so, but I'm still waiting :) I'll try Betty Bearcat manual when I'm in town (@ 35 miles)

No, it was laughable that you responded knowing you were killfiled, it showed how desperate you are for my negative attention. I also never stated you had any obligation to do anything, although you are obligated to pay taxes and die as all of us do.

only such taxes as I can't legal avoid and I am in fact under obligation to die, lathough I deem it liekly that I wil also I note so much for your claim to have killfiled me, you are the one that seems obsessed with me

That radio would still be a favorite if it were available, eh? I have an old eagle 515 kenrich tube amp that hasn't been plugged in for about 8 or 10 years. It probably needs some caps by now..

Call it stealing if you like, it was actually an honest mistake on my part, but you will believe what you desire to believe regardless of the facts.

You just responded to the post where I stated that I unkillfiled you (12 times). You should take some vitamins for your memory.
As far as obsessed, you are the nym shifter that bypasses killfiles so you can continue obtaining your negative attention.
So what kind of radio gear do you own?

I'd love to have a new one. It's a shame that they had change them. In my opinion it was one of the best ssb radios ever made (by CB standards).
Ever seen caps blow? Makes a hell of a mess. LOL

Prolly bring it up on my Buddy's variac if I ever get the urge to fire it again. One of my friends has a standing offer to buy it and the Mark IV if I ever decide to part with it. The amp has the same veneer that the Browning Eagle has on it.

I hate to part with the nostalgia, and they will likely need serviced before being put back in operation.

I recently purchased a SuperStar 3900. It has several modes AM FM LSB USB CW. Each mode has 6 bands A B C D E F. I would like to know if anyone can tell me the frequencies for all the channels on these bands, or the frequencies of one band and the jump in frequency between bands.
I found them for AM but would like them for the rest.
here is the link for AM

Modes and "bands" are not the same thing. You are confusing "frequencies" and the type of emission. Now, you CAN have 27.385 AM, or 27.385 USB, or LSB, or FM, but the two things are not dependent on each other. The so-called "bands" of channels. are groups of frequencies that may go outside of the CB band. Word of caution: Make sure you KNOW where you are actually transmitting!! Some of these frequencies are assigned to the Amateur Radio Service and the "hams" DO monitor those frequencies. Contrary to myth and legend, the Feds DO respond to complaints of unlicensed operators on these frequencies! And the legitimate users of those frequencies will not hesitate to turn in people who encroach there. UPS, for example, got a warning citation for this some time back and told its drivers that they would be terminated if even caught with an "export" radio in their trucks! And UPS is not alone. What makes it so obvious and easy to find unlicensed operators in that part of the 28 MHZ area is the fact that 28.000 thru 28.300 is restricted to Morse Code and digital modes. Somebody talking on AM up there stands out like a sore thumb.

So be careful and stay out of that area if you don't have the license. Just friendly caution.

Thanks for the help. This is my first post in this usenet group. I was a little leary seeing as most of the activity here seems to be childish behavior. I was glad to see an answer. I am most interested in the LSB frequencies. How would those corospond with the AM frequencies. Also what about USB. Thanks for the warning about the Ham frequencies, I was aware of those and will be sure to stay out of the. I am more interested in the SSB.
Thanks again for your response,

It would be a shame to have to part with those. There are rigs I now regret selling over the years (decades). My tube Teaberry, Tram and Layfette. The Layfette had 5 24 channel knobs, I had charts all over my wall so I knew what frequency I was on, a real monster of a rig. LOL

Yeah, but the tubes are outrageous. A couple of 4cx250B's or 572's are a better buy. The EL519's aren't much better than the domestic tubes price

If you want to stay in the legal area, 38 is a commonly used ssb channel. If you plan to freeband, go to this website
http://www.bellscb.com/cb_radio_hobby_freebandfreqs.htm
and learn what frequencies to avoid.

Thanks for the input, that link was no good. Does anyone know what the jump is between A B C D E F ? Is there a list somewhere of the regular LSB frequencies?

Thanks in advance,

Valid Link: http://www.bellscb.com/cb_radio_hobby/freebandfreqs.htm

What you are not understanding is that no matter what the MODE (AM/FM/LSB/USB/CW) is, the transmit FREQUENCY does NOT change. 27.185Mhz AM mode, is no different than 27.185Mhz LSB mode; the only difference is the type of MODULATION.

Frequency Chart: http://www.radiomods.co.nz/freq.html
Check out the whole site, it's a very good one...

Enjoy!

radio gear most of it is my ham band stuff of course Yeasue FT-847, Icom 910h a nice kenwood dual bander with there VC-H! for slow scan TTV a fsatv sysen for 440 band as well a veraity of cb's these days most the am type. I could not tell you models becuase I simply don't pay attention. more interted in the use of a radio than the model or the exact circutitry in it

Sorry, they changed the link since my last visit. This one is good.
http://www.bellscb.com/cb_radio_hobby/freebandfreqs.htm
The C band on your radio should be the legal CB frequencies.
Also if you are on channel 1 band C, AM, USB, LSB,AM are all the same frequency, just a different mode of communication. They all take place on channel 1 but you transmit and receive a different signal depending on what mode you use.

You look right at them in order to use them. How hard is it for you to look at the name and model numbers? I have 10 CBs and can tell you the brand and model of each and every one of them.
At least I got you to post on topic for a change.

I post on topic more in one week than you do in a year. In fact, so far you have only posted one time in this group that was even close to being on topic, yet you omitted talking about your CBs, which is what this NG is about.

so?

I can only name some of Ham gear as well untill the radio cost more than 500 dollars its brand name makes little impresion on me there is only one reason I can't say it to your face, that is becuase you are hiding from the world

coward hide, brave men don't you hide well you figure outt he rest

you and fred and tom ridlle (you know who) are all coward hiding behind

Hello, My name is Dr Death in Chassell MI, USA

I am a gay sexworker and service many men
my by mouth, tongue and anus.

At one time I was a performer in live sex shows with medium to large male dogs for small groups of men (5 to 20) on a twice weekly basis. I did these shows for about 5 years.

The dogs were trained to mount and fuck me. I also sucked off the dogs.

During the shows some men from the audience always came up and used me along with the dogs.
I serviced men and dogs in all combinations and ways: dog in ass man in mouth, dog in mouth dog in ass, two dogs in mouth man in ass, etc.

The shows were hosted and arranged by a man who was also a pimp for gay prostitutes and many of the audience were regualar customers who liked watching gay animal sex. I also liked doing the shows very much.

I am available to service men and their dogs incall or outcall. I will service groups of men and multiple dogs. I am reliable, discreet and cheap to use. I will also perform for video or photography.

If I thought you needed to know who I was, then you would know who I am. Several here have my email. You will not. And yes, I WOULD say anything I have said here to you in public, provided you expose all your deviant practices in public. I don't think you advertise that you shove beer up your ass, do you? And do you wear a sign that says you like to have sex with men and women? If you were to expose yourself in public as such, I would have no problem letting you know that you are not normal. Of course, if you talk like you type, I would let it go as I would assume you are slow and do not know any better. With these circumstances, I suspect you are the coward.

Hello Stevo:

Hows it going?

I would think that a Siltronics is a two transistor mobile amp. And is very similar to other common 2 pill or two transistor linear amplifiers.

A good source for diagrams and info is at:
http://www.cbtricks.com/ then click on amp info.

You may also want to try here for more info:

Not sure a mag-mount would have made it past 100MPH, let alone at 200MPH, especially if it was cheap...

-=[Five Mile High Club]=-

I remember the good old days of flying, when the great 747 fleet first graced the skies. It was the peak of the jet age and the world looked on us as the elite of the elite. We set the standard by which all commercial flying was judged. I recall how honoured I was the day I received my flight attendant wings, my first flight, my promotion to purser. Ahh yes, the past was beautiful. No low budget airlines, no TWA scabs, no imminent fear of bankruptcy. We flew with pride and proved our service was the best. I worked the New York to Frankfurt run as often as I could. Of course, that one day still stands out strongly in my memory.

We were late boarding for the flight. I had gone from the plane into the passenger waiting area. There I noticed him for the first time. He was so handsome-tall, brown hair, high-cheek boned with deep blue eyes and manly tanned face. His moustache accented his perfect smile. Our eyes met. I felt like a school boy who is having the first crush on his teacher. As I walked back to the plane, I glanced back at him only to find him looking at me, grinning like someone with a secret he is aching to tell. I notice he was tall and well framed, even in his business suit.

I returned to my post in the first class cabin and waited to see if he would be seated near my position. Alas, he was not amongst the first class group. I sighed as we closed the doors. One of the stewardess in the aft of the economy cabin called me to come to the rear galley. I carefully checked each passenger as I walked down the aisle, trying to give the appearance that I was inspecting seat belts when in reality I was looking for him. I was perplexed as I failed to find him. The disappointed look disappeared from my face as I walked back towards the first class cabin. There, in seat 23 A, was my handsome stranger.

"Excuse me," he asked, " but what is the flying time to Frankfurt?" I laughed and replied with the 7 and 1/2 hour flight time along with the complete routing that flight 66 would be taking that evening. He thanked me and as I told him I hope i could be of service to him during the flight, he chuckled saying, "I'm sure you will be".

The flight finally took off with its usual 45 minute delay. All during the meal service I kept finding excuses to walk about the cabin to steal a glance at my friend in 23 A. When the meal service was ended in the back, the movie began. I brought 23A a glass of champagne. We spoke casually about this and that, but our eyes were glued to each others during the conversation. I was anxious for the meal service to end. It seemed to be an eternity. All I wanted to do was be with 23A. Finally, the service ended, the passengers were either as soundly asleep as they could be in an airplane, except those in First class who comfortably lounged in their sleeperette seats. The crew was beginning to rest. I went into the bathroom to fix appearance. I looked at my eyes in the small mirror. They seemed to me like two brown dots that were overworked. I combed my longish brown hair into place, even combing my moustache. I then proceeded to 23A.

My friend was asleep in his seat. I sat next to him. The presence of my body caused him to awaken. We spoke. I had a great idea. I decided to give him a tour of the plane. We walked towards the galley elevator. I saw my closest friend, Steve, who was working the flight with me. I nodded at him and he knew what he had to do. Meanwhile, my new friend and I went down to the lower galley.

The lower galley no longer exists in our fleet of planes, but oh, I tell you, I was glad we had it that day.

My companion and I entered the empty galley. The lighting was dim. The drone of the jet engines could be heard louder than before. We spoke without as much fear of being heard. I could see the bulge in his suit. As we looked into each others eyes, our lips suddenly met and we began to embrace. Our kissing became more passionate, my tongue working against the inside of his mouth with our lips hard pressed. THE heat of our longing grew. I started to kiss his neck, rubbing my hand over his crotch area. I felt his hard organ beneath his clothes. I unbuttoned his shirt and began to suck on his erect nipples. Slowly, I worked my way down to his pants. My hand worked his cock out from under them. It was hard and erect. My tongue licked the head and slowly went around the shaft. As I sucked on his immense organ, my fingers worked their way around back and began to tease his tight asshole. He moaned as I took his shaft deep into my throat. "Oh, yeah,"he groaned in excitement"uuuhhhhhhhhh...Fk me, please, fk me" he asked as he moved his body in response to my work.

I stopped sucking on him and stood up, removing the last of his clothes. He looked beautiful, standing naked in the galley. I knew I had time as Steve was above keeping guard and would signal me in plenty of time if there was trouble. By now my own uniform was on the floor. He was rubbing his hands over my hairy chest and worked them down to my cock. He knelt before me and took my eight inch organ into his mouth, making it more erect with each sucking movement.

I then forced him to stand again. I turned him against the galley counter. I stretched his arms out and tied them with some cord that was in one of the holds tightly to the counter. His feet were spread, legs apart, and ass ready for action. I took some butter that was handy and used it to lube his hole. I soon positioned myself behind him and began to work my hard cock into his waiting hole. He moaned,"slowly...ahhhh, slowly." As I pushed into him he began to beg me to push in deeper, deeper, and deeper-until the full length of my shaft was in him. I began to ram hard into his ass. My balls slapped against his smooth, firm buns. Harder and deeper I worked in the dim lights. Here we were, 36000 or more feet up above the North Atlantic, fking our brains out in the galley of a Boeing aircraft. If the designers only knew. I wanted him more with each movement. My body tingled in great pleasure as my cock moved into and out of his aching lovehole. His ass felt tight and warm as I rammed harder, almost without mercy into his bond body. He begged me to shoot my load. As I burned his ass with my cock, I reached my hand around and worked his hard tool. I slowed my pace and played with the head of his cock. This added to his own excitement. He was wild with passion. I began to fk him hard again. As I forced my organ into him, I slapped his ass with my hand. Each slap was harder than the one before. The sound of the engines drowned out his moans. I continued again to play with his ripe cock, twisting it in one hand as I squeezed his balls with the other. I could hardly stand it myself much longer. We were moving as one being. "I'm cumming!" he groaned. I felt his body stiffen and he tightened the muscles of his hole around my cock as his own cock relieved itself of its juices. I rammed harder into his tightened hole, my cock becoming more sensitive until at last I shot my own load deep inside of him.

I pulled my organ from its warm enclosure and untied my victim. We kissed and then quickly dressed as I noticed the warning light, which was Steve's prearranged signal, flash. I help my friend back to 23 A and, very satisfied, I returned to clean up any signs of our fun in the galley.

I was happy to learn later in the flight that he would be staying at the Intercontinental just as the crew would be. We decided to meet in the lobby and we spent that day and night together until I had to leave to work the return flight back to New York. I remember that trip so well. But, even all wonderful memories have their flaw. In all that time, I forgot to ask him his name.

The most popular chip ever made. Still in worldwide use today. Chip is found in the Cybernet chassis. A member of the Motorola family, it uses straight binary programming with internal pull-down resistors and a negative-going PD output. Modification for additional channels is a simple matter of changing the programming or the loop mixing crystal(s). The chip is widely used in the 18-channel Australian rigs, where the only real difference is in the Channel Selector switch.

Try this site:
http://members.tripod.com/~malzev/comp/pll02a.htm
there are other sites that give mods for this pll. I think on my midland, grounding pin 10 gives upper channels, and tying pin 9 to pin 10 will give lower channels.

how do you figure that responding to your tripe might it worth the bother of spelling corectly sound like you are having a brain fart coward, you are afraid to even sign your name to you crap you will invite someone to a fist fight (esp a guy you know to be disabled) but you are a fraid to give your

Nah since to get to my door hed have to comit a crime I'd meet him with shotgun and blow him away he twitched in manner I saw as threatening and have my wife call (!! to haul him for hios crimes or as a carcass his choice

No, the e-mail addy was his, by mistake on my wifes PC, I set it up and forgot the 555usb part of my addy. DrDeath is not stolen, as anyone , including you have every right to use it.

Lame insult, but what can I expect from a retard.

Or the third option, I am human and make mistakes. Read above. My addy is drdeath555usb@yahoo.com check it out. Your addy on the other hand is non existant as I tried to e-mail you. That makes YOU a liar.

The thread title is "get help". Maybe that means something sexual to you, but not me.

And then you proceded to tell everyone about it. You also stated you had sex with men. That's something that belongs in other groups, not radio.

>> that you like to have sex with men, ect?

But why do you feed others with this type of info knowing it will be used against you??

I hide my sexuallity because it is nobodies buisiness but my own. If wanted to talk about sex, I would seek out an appropriate NG dealing with sex.

Sounds like you are jealous that you were not included. Don't like the thread, don't read it. You would feel more at home on alt.recluse.masturbate I'm glad you refer to yourself as "The Real Ham". It's people like you, doug, and markie-tard (all hams) that post homo crap and keep me from getting my ham ticket.

When you call a person a coward, you are calling them out. Go to your nearest bar and call someone a coward and see what happens to your stupid ass.

My second? I fight my own battles. I guess your dad will be your second as you are to chickenshit to fight for yourself.
You need to read more modern books. Dueling went out of style 150 years ago. Am I supposed to pick my weapon of choice? I pick fists and feet at close range.

Hi Jay, it's going OK over here, this is my busy season at work so I'm hoping for some rain. We are almost 3 inches behind in rainfall since spring got here, but otherwise I can't complain.

Thanks for asking.

As to the Siltronix....I never liked them.

I'm not being mean I am just calling them how I see them. This place used to actually be fun. I enjoyed coming here in the early to mid 90's and helping people really trying to enjoy this hobby called cb. I along with Sean, Tollfree & Dennis were here from the beginning and I learned alot from them as well. We 4 actually started on another web based cb board before coming here. Anyway those were the good old days. I even remember the professor being a funny amusing character when he first appeared and his many fights with a guy called painkiller. Now that was one funny character....
Anyway this is what we are left with not even a good joke anymore just who is or who wants to suck cock and be proud of it. Sheesh!!!

Hello Stevo:

Yeah I never had a Siltronix radio, or amp either.

We always called the Siltronix Radios, "Silly Siltronix" because they drifted a lot on SSB. We called the General Radiotelephone Radios, "Junkie Generals" but they worked pretty good.

When I was a kid, my Dad had mostly had Layafette Comstant 25, General Radiotelephone, and Pace Radios, and a slew of linear amplifiers and antennas.

The big thing I remember was replacing the 30 amp Generator with a 65 amp Alternator back in the 60's 70's area, in the ol mans 1964 F100 Custom Cab Truck with fire engine red bucket seats. Man did the old Palmar 150 mobile 12 volt linear amp get up and go after the alternator was installed!

The ol mans boat had a Ford 312 Y Block V8 in it. It had the word "Interceptor" cast into the valve covers, well thats another story......

I had a Palomar 150m some years back. I remember it used to make a whining noise when keyed, but it kicked ass over most pill amps up to 250 watts.

Big deal. So you hurt your leg slipping on a potato peel so you could get an early out and a check. Some honor.

You called me the coward. Now you want to play the disabled card to protect your ass. How do I know you are disabled, because you say so? Other than being retarded, you probably have no other disability. You seem to be able to shoot a shotgun by your own admission, so you can use your arms. You have gay sex so your legs must work. So tell us Chickenshit, what is the nature of your supposed disability? If your talking about your little limp, that's just bullshit. I have had 3 knee surgeries, I limp and work and can still kick the shit out of you.

Hello RF Burns, Tony Roma, and All:

Yeah those where some really great days, just like being at a CB Break or shootout. Meeting all the really great people.

I learned a lot from that crowd, just reading the mail and such. Dennis was really great as when he disagreed with you technically he didn't attack you personally. And I appreciated that when I was told or proven wrong.

Their type of hands on experience and knowledge was like that of a drag race mechanic who know how hard things could be pushed before they come apart. And as usually there was always a few know it all ham radio types who recited book learning that got handed their technical argument back to them. A man who is into him self is surly a small man indeed. Then a few even joined in the conversations. It was really great!

We can all have this type of news group again, we just have to ignore the goof balls.

How would we moderate this news group?

Until the FCC pops your stupid ass for unlicensed transmission. Then when you have to send an explanation to Hollingsworth and or pay a fine then you'll get what you asked for. Here's to hoping that you get your ass busted for getting on there with your stupidity. Frankly, if you want to mess around on CB or Freeband, I certainly don't give a damn.

The FCC can find you in quite a rapid time if you're causing problems, it doesn't take them long with their newer monitoring technology to obtain a fix on your location.

seems like "Dr Death the radio joke" spends a lot of time wondering about who engages in homosexual acts. Then somebody admits to such acts and "Dr Death the radio joke" begins to make threats to the person who engages in such acts. "Dr Death the radio joke" acts like he(she) is stuggleing with some sexual issues.Now this is the same "Dr" who admits he's too stupid to become a no-code tech, but maybe the good (gay) "Dr" will go get some dick at the local truck stop. This may help "Dr hapless-homo" stop being so hostile in these groups and stop with the threats.

Used to have an old D104 with the amp inside and this setup easily goes back to the 70's. That's when I had mine. Used it with a couple of CB rigs. I believe the last version of the 104 made was a special one in gold.

That's at least 15 years newer than the last one I had my hands on.
They were orignally crystal mics, and that's the "real" D104. However, apparently recent models are just like any other mic as far as interfacing goes. And as far as sound goes, they do their best to retain the classic "communication mic" sound, which is in general completely undesirable for a studio mic. But as we all know well, there's an application somewhere for almost any crappy sound. But a D104 would never be my "go to" mic for anything other than recording taxi dispatcher monologue for a film - and I don't do that.

Hello David and all:

David your e-mail bounced!

The reason the old 30 amp Generator was replaced was the new fangled Alternators where hitting the market, that had twice or even more current capability. And in order to charge the Battery the engine had to have more RPM's than just a idle. Where the Alternator would charge the Battery when the engine was just idling, and again had twice the current.

I guess Ford Motor Company didn't think the Ford Pick Up Trucks needed a Alternator. Remember this was a 1964 Custom Cab F100, and didn't have a lot of fancy devices that took a lot of current. The old 30 Amp Generator had to run the engine, charge the battery, running lights and a old Tube Radio, and windshield wipers if it rained, so not a lot of stuff running off the generator.

But the new installed Alternator did have a higher voltage allowing the Palomar 150 Tube Linear Amplifier to run even better with probably around 14 volts to it. The Transistorized switching power supply did make a whining noise. And it got louder with the new alternator.

In dear ol Dads truck ran a old Pace II-S a 12 channel radio, driving the Palomar 150 amp. Into a M125 Antenna, and yeah it got out pretty well.

Now theres guys out there with 200 and 300 amp alternators running transistorized and Tube amps. I never get tried of viewing all the hardware at the Breaks and Shootouts.

But all new vehicles come with a Alternator now I believe.

TNOM, what kind of DSLR and lenses do you own? I own a Rebel with a 50:1.8, a 70-300IS, a 17-40F4L, a 28-135IS, and of course the kit lens. Still learning to use the damn thing, tho!

I don't own a DSLR, nor am I very knowledgeable in photography.
I use a Sony DSC- H1

No shit!!! I own one too! That damn thing is awesome for what it is and what I paid for it. It seriously rivals the Canon. I've taken some exceptional pics with it, and it is still my fav when I don't want to fiddle with controls. The IS is awesome too. And when you get to my age it is a real plus. Actually, it is what prompted me to go the DSLR route. Do you have anything on PBase?

No, I have no photos online. I bought the Sony because of it's unbelievable shutter lag time of .0011 seconds when pre-focused.

Sure was. Down at Mojave Trails park at Victorville for the 40th anniversary of the Bronco. Hanging out with Parnelli Jones, Willie Stroppe, Gale Pike, Rod Hall, James Duff, Ray Harvick. Got down through your part late on Tuesday, but headed by on the way home around 1pm Yesterday.
Gave a shout for you on 17, 19 & 14 but no luck. Hey, what the heck are those buildings down the road a ways from you on the top of that plateau?
It was east & south of "Rocket" something road.

Hi, I have acquired a SML SWR-25.

It does not have a forward/ref switch.

Can anybody tell me how to use it?

It is the same as this one in this picture.

You should have a calibration chart for it as the knob in the middle is used for setting the calibration of frequency /power. Example: If you are using it on 11meters and you know what wattage your radio puts out, adjust the knob for that wattage and it will give you the swr.

Also if you plan to use this on multiple frequencies, you should use another watt meter and make yourself a chart or try to find who made the unit and see if you can get a chart, or ask in the ham groups to see if anyone has a chart for this unit.

Hi Jay

They were less drifty after they got warm (really warm). Didn't they make a 10/11M radio way back when, 1011C? (junk too)

I know what you mean about alternator upgrades. I've had to do them mostly for running snow plow equipment on trucks...oh what a difference they make, and the extra room for stereo and CB gear comes in handy with it too.

Did that truck of yours have a spare tank for shine, under the bed? :)

Usenet.

The only thing you have down pat is how to make a

You can't tell Morkie that.

Morkie insists that others use it as a "weapon", yet he's the one who persistantly trashes the Amateur NG's about "sexualty" issues and refuses to just let it drop. He's been told this over and over, yet HE is the one who continues it.

He LIKES being 'abused'...

> >> that you like to have sex with men, ect?

Morkie still doesn't get it.

No one really cares about his "sexualty". I've seen the fatboy, and if there's another "man" that "wants" that, well then all I can say is that neither one could have had much self-respect to start with! I try to keep an open mind about other's "preferences", but poop on the peter has got to be about the most disgusting thing I can envison. If Mother Nature wanted it that way, there'd be one hole, not two.

What MATTERS (to me, anyway...) is that when someone else "outted" him over it, he had been (A) bragging about "morality" and "ethics" issues, and then (B) tried to lie his way out of it...and got CAUGHT!

Now he BRAGS about HIS lying and his intent to teach his children (God forbid this creep procreates) how to lie.

Morkie's been offered more help than the Red Cross, Salvation Army, FEMA, and any 10 United Nations's relief organizations together could possibly offer, but he spurns any suggestion that HE needs help.

We suggested "euthanasia" but it took Morkie a week to realize that we were NOT talking about adolescents in China!

Jay those were the days when this group was so much fun and enjoyable and very informative. Like I said some of the guys here were so funny back in the day... painkiller argiung with the professor and concrete man, icecold with his jokes of the day...., sean, tollfree & dennis for their knowledge. I would like to believe that this group can be like that again however it is hard to imagine. Some of the guys I just mentioned are gone forever and some are watching from a distance.

well,dr death is quit the asshole. my only point was he (she) appears to be obsessed with you. now if dr death is gay or bi, i couldn't care less. it's none of my business who does what to who.

i think dr death fucks with you so much because he (she) is trying to deal with those homosexual "urges" he (she) is trying to supress. then when he (she) makes threats or implies a fight would solve the problem it's just a cover up for his confused sexual feelings.

the silly asshole probably doesn't even know why he continues to seek you out.

indeed i don't care about his orientation either I don't even mind others knowing i am bisexual I do feel that issue is better adressed in another forum but the Dr and fred and wismen and robeson are so obessed by sex they can't accept that very likely, at least that is the opo phych view and likely aplies here acordding to science almost everyone has at least some homosexual thoughts (and for that matter ermost every homo has hetero thoughts at times)

he can't stopp neither can wismen and robeson they are so set on trying to alter there worl to something where they can avoid the reality of their own problems

it is pitable and I dod pity them I do OYTOH wish theyd find another target prehaps a 338 aimed at the real source of thier problem then pull the trigger Wsimen would certainly be happier as might death and why i wouldnt have a dam KENMORE thats a cb radio and the henrys are to old and heavy just junk and i`l let u be the judge on my audio fred...ive been told it quite good!

Is that why all of your supposed friends snicker at you when you leave the air. Hang around and listen after you sign off. You are the butt of their jokes. And everybody knows Kenwoods have the sweetest audio. Icoms are junk, but things could change if they made a better radio. But back to your weak little signal... Ameritron sucks and sucks even worse now that it is MFJ. Enjoy your welfare shack, Norm, but please take a bath.

ARRL threw principle out the window when they caved in to the demands of the Lambda Amateur Radio Club (LARC). It was a sad day for me indeed when I opened my beloved QST magazine and there on the pages were photos of queers on a Tropical DXpedition, and in living color no less. The ARRL wanted us to embrace a sick perverted lifestyle and be one big happy family. To me, it was the spark that signaled the death of a once proud organization, and it turned liberal.

I'll bet you try to pass yourself off as a Christian.... I guess you never really learned some of the most important lessons.
The first lesson is to treat EVERYBODY with the same courtisy and respect that you expect from them.

Welcome to my killfile.

What I don't get is why we are forced to see homosexuality in areas that have nothing to do with sex, such as the example you mentioned.

I get the impression that this may have been a Troll post, but it really is a valid point.

It is far too common to refer to a broadcast band by the modulation method used rather than the band of frequencies used. Here in the UK we refer to those radio broadcast bands as "MW" (Medium Wave) and "VHF" (Very High Frequency). These bands are also commonly referred to as "AM" and "FM" simply because the MW band uses Amplitude Modulation and the VHF band uses Frequency Modulation.
We also have a band called "LW" (Long Wave), which also uses AM.

Regards,

Peter.

The spacing between channels is usually 10KHz, with some channels having 20KHz between them.
The usual jump between bands is 450KHz, which takes CH1 just one channel above the CH40 on the

AM, FM, SSB, LSB and USB are not frequencies or channels. These are ways to use the frequencies, different methods of putting your voice onto the frequency you have selected. You may use a channel for AM, FM or SSB... but only one of these at any time.

There is some information about what sideband is on this site...
http://www.citizensband.radiouk.com/
There is also a list of the standard CB frequencies for England, Europe and America (Europe uses the same band as America, but with FM). This is a UK based site, so the section on CB rules will not apply in America, but radio works the same way wherever you are.

Despite all the abuse on this group, there are some decent, helpful people here. Some of us just sit watching the group and waiting for something intelligent to reply to.
Although only small in number, the idiots are very noisy as they have nothing better to do with their time. The best thing you can do is ignore the idiots, don't even give them the time of day. Their messages are like junk mail... just one response will justify 1000 more junk messages.

Regards,
Peter.

Hey Markie, so you admit to supporting Iran, you anti-American pervert?

They won't like you after they find out what a pervert you are, Markie, they'll behead you in a public square.

> gte help.

No, Verizon took over GTE, dumbass. A Iranian sympathizer like you is looking for infrastructure attack points, are you? Markie admits to beinfg a terroist!

Hello Stevo:

Hehhehehehe, no I never ran shine. But I did meet a bunch that did down in Long Beach at Bill Stroups racing shop. No dought there where a few of the good ol boys there.

I heard of highly modified cars with big engines and tanks to carry the shine. I think thats where Nascar has its roots?!?!?

more gay postings.....then they blame "an old friend" for the sexual shit in the groups. seems like "an old friend" only defends himself and it's all of you sick-fucks that start the bullshit. yep, you hammies use "an old friend" to cover your own sexual desires that you have not learned to deal with. "an old friend" does NOT spam. he only defends himself from the insults. code or no-code? who gives a fuck? i really don't.....but it sure does piss off alot of you idiots that code is going away. so, i hope it goes away and the written test becomes even easier. that is funny as hell!! the only real difference between ham & CB is the number of frequencies and modes available. Oh, and the fact that Cb'ers that become hams seem to make a better class of ham.

Got a kick out this modified Heathkit SB200.

http://cgi.ebay.com/Heathkit-SB-200-X3-2500-Watts-w-five-572Bs_W0QQitemZ9722720343QQcategoryZ48700QQrdZ1QQcmdZViewItem

5 each 572B tubes instead of the stock 2 each 572B tubes. Yeah it has a external power supply.

Thinking of modifying a old Maverick 250 into a Maverick 1250. Replacing the 8 tubes with a pair or 4CX400 Russian Tubes. Yeah.....

Modified linears is always a neat thing to look over. Saw a Modified Palomar Skipper 300, with a mint Chrome Cabinet, at the TRW Swap Meet. It had completely been gutted and modified, again the sweep tubes and power supply had been removed and a pair of 4CX250 where installed.

Yea the good ole days, eh Jay?

Toyota is about to take over Nascar so my interest in that racing is waning pretty fast now. Those first generation guys used to out-drive the law, with their engine/camber/caster/shocks package..

The engine still comes in a crate.....the law comes in packs now. :(

Some of my family ran a bit of that stuff in WV back in the day...'before my time but I been told'.

hi all
i was told to take down an antenna by the council that was on a small mast of about twenty feet. total hight thirty five feet.
i have been told that if i place my mast and antenna in a small box type trailer im ok.
as it is mobile i only have to move it from my house once a month (to the road and back).
i dont know how much truth there is in this any help is welcome.
with thanks

Have you looked at doing a stealth antenna? I dunno too much about them but I hear they work ok.

LOL!

I enjoy reading and learning from "an_old_friend". He actually conducts himself according to the amateur code while you amateur policy asswipes do not.

As far as Moped-doped I actually talked to him in person at dayton one year. He's actually not bad in person. Dumb as fuck, but not bad. I don't know Dr DeadDick, but I seen his types over and over again. I think its so fucking funny to watch you idiots get so pissed over usenet postings. How to use it? I got this load of CB stuff and want to install it, according to what I've read the SWR meter is for adjusting the 18 feet antenna, but how do you do that with this thingy.What would be the best lace to install the antenna, as high as? Might be a job our average wind speed is about 45 k an hour or 30 miles.

Thanks

A number of years back, this guy lived in public housing and could not have an external ant. He had one that sat on a table in his house and grounded through the building wiring. I never saw the setup, but on the weekend when he got drunk, he could shut the channel down.

I never got pissed. I was having fun at his expense. I'm also having fun watching you troll me with little success. And why would I want to conduct myself to the amateur code when I do not subscribe to amateur policy, nor do I care to abide by it. But I can see why you would defend Markie-tard, as you two have so much in common.

70 feet in the air is perfect as long as you don't live in an area that restricts you, otherwise just get it above any obstructions and you will be fine. The swr meter does not set the swr, it only measures it. You have to adjust the antenna for the lowest swr reading. Not knowing the brand of antenna, I cannot help you with how to adjust it.

What is sad is that in California they deny the Boy Scouts public park access, but it is OK for gays to have public sex in the same parks without fear of being arrested.

Neither do I unfortunately, time has washed away all markings, I'll give it an easy accessible place first and figure out what I can do to improve/lower my swr.The swr meter has a calibration switch,(turn type) FWD/REF switch and a FWD/REF switch.and a gauge that runs from 1 to 10 red-zone starts at 3 any idea how that should work?

Thanks

Set to FWD
Turn on tranmitter adjust for 100% on the meter Set to REF (reflected)
now the meter indicated the reflected power.
'3' in your case is about 25%!!!!
Your transmitter gets this extra power back, it may not be able to handle that.
So switch off immediatly if 3 or higher (red area).
Then adjust antenna, and try again.
Always<--- use FWD to recalibrate.

I do have a PAN SWR230, it has a power meter too.
What I did was connect a transistor over the SWR meter, that drives a 3V
beeper and a red LED, like this (use fixed font):

------------------------
| | |
270 [ ] | |
| | |
red \ / O] 3V beeper | +
LED --- | -
| | ---
---- |
/ |
+ 10k |/ - 2x 1.5V AA battery
0--==----| BC547 ---
from |> | -
SWR \ |
meter | |
0------------------------------

So now anytime SWR changes (the old antenna used to behave bad in storms and rains, the beep will sound, and the LED will come on.
There is no switch, batteries have lasted >4 years in this :-)
When the voltage across the SWR meter becomes > 0.7V, the transistor conducts, and the beeper and LED come on.
So also during calibration (FWD), so that tests the batteries and LED.

I think the R is 10k, but I would have to open it up to check.
Nothing is very critical though.
Been in use now for 8 years!

There was an article on building up a antenna inside of a piece of PCV and stuck it over the sewer pipe on the top of the house. It was loaded a little to shorten it down a bit but it was better than nothing, besides it looked like part of the house.

He, great, another mystery solved, ur Dutch I guess, just like me, but I ended up in Canada.
One more, the antenna has nothing adjustable on it, I just checked. A 10 feet pole with at the bottom a "normal" connection to a "normal" cable. "normal" = all my ends of cable will fit on it. This is held in a steel base part, looks like the wooden pole is caught in a tube of about 14" high and that will also be the part I will use to hang it to the gable of my shop. Pole it self is wood, with a connecting cable going through it to the top, on the top a steel screw connection to pole number 2, 8 feet long. Also wood with ? in it. It all ends in a rubber cap at the top. The wood was painted and I sanded it down and put a first coat of paint on again. If that part cant' be adjusted, the length of the cable will be important, as far as I get it. Is the assumption right ? Do I cut of a small piece of the cable, solder on the coupler again and try again for improvement?
Thanks for any help here.
And this is two then :) I also found two 30 watt amplifiers, they run on 12 volts and have two "normal" connections for the antenna cable. One in and one out I guess. While testing with the swr thingy they should be in the loop too? Are those things necessary, a huge improvement or just a gadget for the show?

I would test the SWR first, and leave it if it is less then 2.5 or so.
SWR usually is frequency dependent, so test midband, ch20, and also high and low band.
This will also give a hint if it is too short or too long.
If the SWR is better (REF = lower) at high band then at mid band, then the length is too short.

>And this is two then :) I also found two 30 watt amplifiers, they run on 12 microphone----cbset----amplifier----swr meter-----antenna

>Are those things necessary, a huge improvement or just a gadget >for the show?

I dunno what the regulations are in Canada.
Maybe there is a maximum power (like here it is 4W FM for example).
Of course more power will make people hear you further away, but if they use normal power, only a better antenna and better sensitivity can make you hear them.
And a better antenna will compensate for more power.
That leaves better sensitivity you need (apart from the legal stuff).

Thanks again Jan,
I'll finish the antenna and put it on the roof and give it a try, if new problems arise, I'll post here again, I like the internet, so much knowledge.
Thanks for your time and advice

hey, "an_old_friend".....you seem like a good guy. don't let these low lifes fuck with you. i'll catch up on all of it when i get back home. my dispatcher is sending me down to anderson,sc then out to the west coast.

it's none of these asswipes business who you're married to or who you sleep with. they're probably pissed that your life is yours and it doesn't matter to you what they think. thats a big problem with the radio hobby, no matter if it's cb, ham or what ever. people sticking their noses into things that have nothing to do with radio. then the idiots even fight with themselves over who is a ham or cb'er. then the hams fight over who has what kind of license. dumb stupid shit. why do people forget the main purpose the main purpose is having fun with rf? why does it matter who has a license? or what class? then we all wonder why any radio hobby is looked at strangely by the general public. maybe because all these wonderful folks who worry about who is straight, bi, or gay are the strangest, lowest forms of life there is..... truth is, most are just plain fucking weird to most non-radio hobby types. i say "fuck'em...." have fun!

an_old_friend, keep these neurotics in check and i'll catch up when i get back. BTW, i monitor 146.52 in my truck most of the time,along with good 'ole ch 19. it would be my pleasure to work your station sometime.

If you are considering posting a floowup to this message do this:

Up on the top of your message delete all of the newsgroup names EXCEPT rec.raio.amateur.policy because the antenna guys and the equipment guys do not really care about this subject.

Thank you very much. The whole world will think you are much more intelligent now that you know how to use Usenet.

Yea there you go. A guy can get inventive with a flag pole for an antenna too. Heck, load up the rain gutters with your tuner if they're metal.

Norm, you are truly a fucking idiot. FYI i don't play with silly hammie contests or other such non-sense. i've never sat for a "ve" exam and never will. i've held a general ticket since 1971 and sat before the fcc to be tested. actually had to draw a couple of simple circuits, not to mention 75% solid cpy.

as far as 50wpm, if thats true you're using a computer to cpy. i hold my own at approx 25 wpm.....MAYBE 30 on a good day. so what? cw doesn't prove shit. some of the new tech's run circles around me with their digital skills. you OTOH probably can't cpy your name at 5 wpm. to me, the new tech's are a breath of fresh air to a hobby that has been nothing more than a ceptic tank thanks to assholes like you.

cb radio is still fun, too. spent many nights shooting the shit on the lower side of 16 with my trusty trc-48. i still like to listen to the entertainment on 38 lsb. it's funny, norm. not as funny as reading your horse shit, but funny.

well, i'm leaving for s.c. .....got to make money dodging the DOT fellas, don't ya know. i'll see you when i get home.....you silly fucks make me laugh my ass off! thanks for all the material.

>Jay in the Mojave

Jay those were the days when this group was so much fun and enjoyable and very informative. Like I said some of the guys here were so funny back in the day... painkiller argiung with the professor and concrete man, icecold with his jokes of the day...., sean, tollfree & dennis for their knowledge. I would like to believe that this group can be like that again however it is hard to imagine. Some of the guys I just mentioned are gone forever and some are watching from a distance.

?? A good crystal element in a D-104 is clear and distortion-free in a general sense i.e. no kazoo, no grainy, no tunnel, with the crispness to override noise.

A bad element can lead to what you are talking about. The recent Astatic elements are ceramic and I've yet to try them, my crystal still being good.

Lively does not have to be 'crappy'. BTW, replace that built-in amp with a home-brew two-FET amp and you will have eliminated most of that objectionable sound.

I should have bought that Golden Eagle. I knew it.They are getting big bucks on Ebay.

How about FET follower with a FET current source. You would have to attenuate the output since the element has very high output voltage.

That's not my reading. Violating the law of hospitality. Where in the Torah is that law specifically cited?

Homosexual sex is defines as SODOMY in Western Law.

I dig that country twang too, so long as they're not whining too much. I know I've already said it but give a listen to Steve Earle if you enjoy that style of music.

Have some fun!

Hi Jim

I rarely ever curse the rain and so now we are behind on rainfall overhere...this is a nice reprieve for everything that grows in these parts.

It's strange how different the weather can be from town to town, ain't it?

Rain makes me a superstar most years.

Three inches at once is a lot tho..

about 6 weeks ago we had 6-8" of rain. enough is enough. the vineyards out east are going to be hurting as grape growers love drier conditions.

either way, the mets are beating the brewers and the beers are frosty.

5483. Pilot gets SPANKED

Newsgroup: rec.radio.cb
Date: 2006-05-13 07:11:26 UTC

Message-ID: <yEf9g.13338$Gg.12326@twister.nyroc.rr.com>
Source record: 213818

A consent decree has finally ended an enforcement action against Pilot Travel Centers LLC that could have cost the company $125,000 in fines. In November 2004 the FCC issued a Notice of Apparent Liability (NAL) asserting that Pilot, despite multiple citations and warnings, continued to market CB transceivers labeled as Amateur Radio gear but intended for use on both Citizens Band and amateur frequencies. An FCC Order released May 11 adopts the attached consent decree between the agency and Pilot and terminates the forfeiture action. While Pilot agrees to make "a voluntary contribution" of $90,000 to the US Treasury "without further protest or recourse," the company does not admit any wrongdoing.

"The parties further agree that this consent decree is for settlement purposes only and that by agreeing to the consent decree, Pilot does not admit or deny any liability for violating the [Communications] Act or the rules in connection with the matters that are the subject of this consent decree," the agreement stipulates.

Under the terms of the consent decree, Pilot must refrain in the future from marketing as "Amateur Radio" gear any transmitting devices with built-in features to facilitate CB operation. The company also must determine in advance that any CB transmitting gear it offers for sale is FCC certificated. CB transmitters must receive FCC certification--formerly called "type acceptance." Amateur Radio transmitting equipment does not require FCC certification.

Should Pilot plan to sell legitimate Amateur Radio transceivers, it must ensure before marketing or selling them that the ARRL Lab has reviewed the equipment in question and determined that it transmits only in the Amateur Radio bands. The ARRL Lab tests equipment both for QST "Product Review" articles as well as for compliance with QST advertising policy, which requires that items offered for sale meet FCC rules.

Further, the consent decree requires Pilot to remove from sale certain Galaxy brand transceivers (models DX33HML, DX66V and DX99V) and any other "Amateur Radio" transceivers that have not passed ARRL Lab muster in the course of product review or advertising compliance testing. Pilot also will have to ensure that any CB transceivers on sale by entities leasing space on its premises are FCC certificated.

The consent decree brings to a close an enforcement action dating back more than six years. In its 2004 NAL, the FCC cited 47 separate instances between 2002 and 2004 when Pilot allegedly had offered for sale various models of non-certificated Galaxy CB transceivers labeled as "amateur radios" that easily could be modified for CB operation.

The Order and the consent decree are on the FCC Web site <http://hraunfoss.fcc.gov/edocs_public/attachmatch/FCC-06-53A1.pdf>.

but i don't do that you OTOH stand and shout he is faq and therefore must shut up which is an effortto restrict my frees speech right which getsyou called various naes yourself

indeed standing up and calling someoe a faq is what has taken the place of true in this and many other NG's

what intolerance?

I have no real problem with your being heterosexual, I happen to think it is a bit perserve to limit your affections based solely on what is between a person legs, But I absolutely support your right to do so it is impossible even if we were to have sex or share bllod you can't get HIV from me.

it is simple fact I would have have HIV before I can spread HIV

the only reason I would never call you a coward to your face is you hide name adres and idenity so I can't call yu o a coward to your face, I would not make the trip since you are not worth it but you are the one sexauly harasingpeople from behind a keyboard in complete anomymity like the coward you are/

if deulign were still allowed Id ask the name of your second, but if I

Norm's so dumb, when they were handing out brains, he thought they said trains, and asked for a slow one.

What do you tell Norm when you see him with two black eyes?
Nothing, he was already told twice.

Norm's mom had to tie a pork chop around his neck to get the dog to play with him.

Norm's last job was skindiving for the city sewer service.

You do it to bypass killfiles, the more negative the attention the better.

Your afraid of your own shadow.
You never did address the issue of how you were injured in the military and have a limp that keeps you from fighting another person with a limp.

You need a second because you are to chickenshit to fight your own battles.
Fred and myself do not need "seconds" to protect us. Your second is probably your mommy.

You don't have the power to not be an annoying asshole?
That's an admition that you have no self control.
There is nothing moral or righteous about you. You admit to corupting your own children with your perversions.

5534. Smallest amp for effecitve range increase that works?

What's the smallest amps in terms of wattage that will have a effective increase in range? I currently have a range of 7 to 12 miles from my Base to a mobile. I need to get that to about 15 to 22 miles. Both the mobile and the base will get amps.

Currently I have a Uniden Washington (with Peak/tune/extra channels) and a A99 on the roof (about 33 feet up)

The Mobile is a stock Cobra 29 with a 102 steel whip.

I thought about getting side band for the mobile, but it seems like a hassle to tune a signal while driving down the road. I has a Grant LT in my old truck, and I don't think I ever used the sideband while in motion.

So what do I need? a mini 40watt wasp?
or something near or over 200watt.

I'm not looking for over kill, or to spend more then I need, I just want to be able to talk from work to the house.

No dumbass, you whined like a lil bitch that my email was wrong. I tried to send you an email and yours didn't exist.
The email from Norm proves my point that my identity needs to remain anonymous as this could just as easily been something disgusting in my mailbox. But you won't see the connection as you walk around in your own lil imaginary world.

250 watts or less. Get one with high and low settings and use as little power as possible. Don't drive the amp to hard as the transistors will reach saturation and cause distortion, bleedover, and unwanted harmonics on other frequencies. Make sure it is class AB. And unless you live in the sticks, run a low pass filter.

Bigot? I think not. I have no problem with people of any color, race,

What I DO have a problem with is you post your shit to a radio newsgroup.
You have only posted on topic to this group on one occasion when I asked what kind of gear you own. By your own admission, you don't come here to make friends, so, why do you come here Mark?

Really nice receiver. General coverage receivers are getting harder to find.
I had one of these in my shack years ago. Great radio.

From Wikipedia: The adjective homosexual is also used for same-sex sexual relations between persons of the same sex who are not gay or lesbian.

it would not but i never do that Tom but since you askk achol is absubed by the the tissue and indeed the most inflamed and irrated the tissue the faster it takes it up other sutff frankly has been so dilute that it just doesn't work ona serverse flare up your point?

mine that fred refuses to face the fact I am not a homosexaul althought
i have sometime have homosexaul sex I also have heterosexaul sex,, doesn't make me hetero either fred and yourself and other simply can't accept that I have the same right on air and on Usenet as the rest of you now the ng would be more fun if youall posted more about radios and less about someone saying someone else is gay or (a childmolster goat fucker) the NG work better when the topics at least vaguely realate to the title of the NG

but then I am addressing my remarks to someone too cowardly to sign his name so to adress I have taken one that fits his choosen nick, Tom Riddle

Make sure your mobile has low SWR before installing an amp. You should be using an exact half-wave length of coax in your mobile which, depending on what coax, will be around 12 to 13 feet but not 18 feet as so many people say. A 102" whip will not match perfectly but is a great antenna with an SWR around 1.4:1. Many people have been able to get their 102" whip to "flatline" by experimenting with coax length but all they really did was cause their coax to act as part of the antenna while the antenna itself didn't work any better. It's also important to run a heavy ground cable from the base of your antenna to the vehicle frame for proper operation. There is a formula,which I can send you if you want, for calculating the exact length of your particular coax needed to achieve an exact half-wave length on your desired frequency. I assume you have mounted the 102 on the vehicle where there is plenty of metal (ground plane) all around it and have used a ball and spring mount. Good Luck

You mean other than claiming you're not a pervert when you admit to having same-sex relations?

Or lying about your service in the Armed Forces?

Then we have you allegations of being threatened.

Follow that up with your allegations of being stalked.

We can then add in your past mental health history which you denied you had, then admitted to being treated after being outted even once more.

There's more, but hey. you keep these alive well enough...

Frank Zappa - Dancing Fool
(written by: Frank Zappa)

I don't know much about dancin',
That's why I got this song,
One of my legs is shorter than the other,
And both of my feet are too long.
'Course now I'll ride along with them,
I got no natural rythem,
But I go dancing every night,
Hoping one day I might get it right!

I'm a dancing fool (Dancing fool)X3

I hear that beat,
I jump outta my seat,
But I can't compete,
'Cause I'm a.....

Dancing fool (dancing fool)X3

The disco folks all dressed up,
Like life is fit to kill,
I walk on in and I see 'em there,
Gonna give them all a thrill.
When they see me comin',
They all steps aside,
They has a fit while I come in,
My social suicide.

I'm a dancing fool (dancing fool)X3

The beat goes on and on,
And I'm so... (woooaah)
The beat goes on and on,
And I'm so... (woooaah)
The beat goes on and on
And I'm so... (woooaah)

The beat goes on and I'm so wrong,
The beat goes on and I'm so wrong,
The beat goes on and I'm so wrong,
The beat goes on and I'm so wrong,
I may be totally wrong but I'm a...

Dancing fool (dancing fool)

I may be totally wrong but I'm a...

Dancing fool (dancing fool)

Yowzer, yowzer, yowzer,
I got it all together now,
With my very own disco clothes... Hey!
My shirt's half open,
To show you my chain,
And the spoon for up my nose.
I am really something,
That's what you'd probably say,
So smoke your little smoke,
And drink your little drink,
While I dance the night away.
I'm a...

Dancing fool (dancing fool)X4

He's a dancing fool

I may be totally wrong but I'm a...
I may be totally wrong but I'm a...
I may be totally wrong but I'm a...
I may be totally wrong but I'm a...

I may be totally wrong but I'm a fool...yeah

Hey darling, can I buy you a couple of drinks, hmm?
Lookin' for Mr. Goodbar, 'cause here he is.
Wait a minute, I've got it,
You're an Italian.
Ha? You're Jewish?
Oh. love your nails.
You must be a Libra.
To your place or mine?

(laughs)
yes.

Yes...Markie is a dancing fool DANCE MARKIE DANCE!

5579. Pilot truck stop thumbs nose at FCC

Newsgroup: rec.radio.cb
Date: 2006-05-15 21:37:48 UTC
From: iamnotgeorge@webtv.net Message-ID: <24584-4468F4AC-552@storefull-3256.bay.webtv.net>
Source record: 214016

Beautiful. Pilot keeps their reputation intact with a clean record and does a good deed by making a donation to the feds. Oh, I almost forgot, the company was also forced to agree to obey the law..you know the law,,,the one they were alleged to have disregarded..the one disallowing them from selling the radios they were selling all along. In other words, they are now being asked to comply with the law. Additional violations of the law will result in additional action by the FCC, perhaps even a warning letter sent to Pilot. Hammer down, good buddy!

A consent decree has finally ended an enforcement action against Pilot Travel Centers LLC that could have cost the company $125,000 in fines. In November 2004 the FCC issued a Notice of Apparent Liability (NAL) asserting that Pilot, despite multiple citations and warnings, continued to market CB transceivers labeled as Amateur Radio gear but intended for use on both Citizens Band and amateur frequencies. An FCC Order released May 11 adopts the attached consent decree between the agency and Pilot and terminates the forfeiture action. While Pilot agrees to make "a voluntary contribution" of $90,000 to the US Treasury "without further protest or recourse," the company does not admit any wrongdoing.
"The parties further agree that this consent decree is for settlement purposes only and that by agreeing to the consent decree, Pilot does not admit or deny any liability for violating the [Communications] Act or the rules in connection with the matters that are the subject of this consent decree," the agreement stipulates.
Under the terms of the consent decree, Pilot must refrain in the future from marketing as "Amateur Radio" gear any transmitting devices with built-in features to facilitate CB operation. The company also must determine in advance that any CB transmitting gear it offers for sale is FCC certificated. CB transmitters must receive FCC certification--formerly called "type acceptance." Amateur Radio transmitting equipment does not require FCC certification.
Should Pilot plan to sell legitimate Amateur Radio transceivers, it must ensure before marketing or selling them that the ARRL Lab has reviewed the equipment in question and determined that it transmits only in the Amateur Radio bands. The ARRL Lab tests equipment both for QST "Product Review" articles as well as for compliance with QST advertising policy, which requires that items offered for sale meet FCC rules.
Further, the consent decree requires Pilot to remove from sale certain Galaxy brand transceivers (models DX33HML, DX66V and DX99V) and any other "Amateur Radio" transceivers that have not passed ARRL Lab muster in the course of product review or advertising compliance testing. Pilot also will have to ensure that any CB transceivers on sale by entities leasing space on its premises are FCC certificated.

The consent decree brings to a close an enforcement action dating back more than six years. In its 2004 NAL, the FCC cited 47 separate instances between 2002 and 2004 when Pilot allegedly had offered for sale various models of non-certificated Galaxy CB transceivers labeled as "amateur radios" that easily could be modified for CB operation.

5598. A "Final Solution" To The Illegal Alien Problem

Frank applauds the Minutemen in their march on Washington, arguing that they are not so much against illegal invaders, but are against crime.

Frank then proposes his own "final solution" to the illegal alien problem - chip implantation for anyone who comes into America on a visa. The chip will send out a signal out to immigration authorities once the person's visa expires, allowing for easy tracking and expelling of the violator from America. If this chip were removed from the visa holder before its expiration, another signal would be sent to authorities noting abuse of the system.

Frank also calls for the deportation of Americans who want to play Political Hackey Sack with Iran. If you're that stupid, if you're that naiive to feel sorry for Iran and portray that country as a victim, you have no right to call yourself an American. Frank bases this on the closing words of Iranian President's letter to Bush, where he writes, "Peace be upon those who follow the true path".

>Jay those were the days when this group was so much fun and enjoyable >and very informative. Like I said some of the guys here were so funny >back in the day... painkiller argiung with the professor and concrete >man, icecold with his jokes of the day...., sean, tollfree & dennis
